The Doctor Beats the Lawyer by a Majority of Nine, and Alderman Redfield in the Fifth Ward Wins Out by the Same Vote.

SWEEPING VICTORY FOR COMPTROLLER A. J. CUNNEEN

L. P. Moen and W. J. Shumway are Chosen as Assessors—Three New Aldermen Elected, Heffron, Port and Sparks.

The storm of Tuesday, rain falling throughout the day, proved disastrous to hopes of many aspirants for official distinction here and elsewhere, and when the final count was made there were surprises in store. The unfavorable weather, however, kept many voters at home, only 1,347 votes being cast for the candidates for mayor, while over 1,600 votes were polled at the election one year ago. The fact that more or less of our citizens looked with favor upon both candidates for mayor, having no particular choice, also probably accounted somewhat for the light vote, notwithstanding that both of them were out to win and did some hard work during a few days before election. There was a strong fight for the office of comptroller, with five candidates in the field, but the excellent record that A. J. Cunneen has made during the past two years ensured his re-election at this time, and when the votes were counted he had nearly as many as all the other candidates combined, lacking only 7. The new council, with Mayor Walters presiding, will hold its first meeting next Tuesday evening. The result of yesterday's local election is given below:

The groom is a son of John Marchel, a former chairman from the town of Eau Claire, and is a young man of good ability, coupled with exceptional worth and character. The young couple first met at Wausau, where the bride has relatives with whom she visited frequently. The groom's friends in Stevens Point and elsewhere trust that the future of his bride and himself may be a happy one.

OIL PROPERTIES SOLD

Big Sale of Oklahoma Oil Lands Brings Over a Million Dollars to Present and Former Stevens Pointers.

Negotiations for the sale of Oklahoma oil properties in which a number of Stevens Pointers are interested, and which have been in progress for about two months, were practically closed on Saturday last. This is the result of a meeting held in this city the first part of February, at which representatives of the buyers, as well as many stockholders, were present. The transfer will include a number of leases, the principal ones and the price to be received by each company is as follows: Stevens Point Oil Co., $335,000; Wigan Oil Co., $335,000; Appleton-Osage Oil Co., $400,000; Waukesha Oil Co., $80,000; Elk Oil Co., $35,000. For other properties not included above about $180,000 will be received, making the total $1,365,000. The option given at the meeting held here in February was until April 1st, and it was formally accepted on that date in New York city, a registered letter to that effect being received here on Sunday. Who the purchasers are is not stated, and in fact is known by but few, if any, of the stockholders in the companies named. Some are of the opinion that the Standard Oil Co. is back of the deal, while others say that it is an English syndicate, but none of the stockholders seem to care, being satisfied with the fact that they will realize well on their investments and that between $800,000 and $900,000 will be distributed among present and former Stevens Pointers, a few of whom will receive from $75,000 to $150,000. The entire amount represented in the above transaction will be sent to this city, and the stockholders will be paid by check, not later than the first of next month.

"The Black Hand"

Capt. O. O. Wiard, a detective of national reputation, has been engaged to lecture at St. Paul's M. E. church tomorrow, Thursday evening, under the auspices of the Woman's Club civic committee. He will tell of personal experiences with the notorious Black Hand society and we are assured that his talk will be interesting from start to finish. The net proceeds will be used by the committee in paying for trees now being set out on Patch street, near Forest cemetery, and for other work planned for the season. An admission of 25 cents will be charged adults; students and children, only 10 cents.

A stereopticon will be operated by Prof. Look to illustrate the lecture, power to run the lantern being donated by Supt. Mainland of the lighting company. The committee also feels under deep obligations to the church society for the free use of the auditorium.

Marriage License

LOOKS BRIGHT AND GOOD

Stevens Point Will Again Become a Division of the Soo, Probably Both Freight and Passenger.

That the time is not far distant, possibly within the next few weeks, when the Soo railway company will make Stevens Point a division headquarters, for both freight and passenger trains, is regarded as a certainty by railroad men and others who have watched the progress trend of this company since it came into possession of the old Wisconsin Central. The Soo has had and is still having much difficulty in handling its freight business, owing mainly to the long distance between divisions, and not a day passes that from one to a dozen trains are tied up for hours in the local yards, while the same state of affairs exists at different points along the line, north and south. To relieve this congested condition, the divisions must be shortened or changed, especially after the new cut-off between Spencer and Owen is completed, which will be in a short time. Those in a position to know, say that this will also necessitate a change in passenger divisions and that Stevens Point is the natural place for both.

A Minneapolis paper of last Friday published an article, giving the name of President Pennington as its authority, saying that the distance between Chicago and St. Paul and Minneapolis would be shortened by building another cut-off between Mukwanago, in the southern part of Waukesha county, to Portage, thus reducing the distance nearly 40 miles. From Portage the Portage-Stevens Point branch of the Soo will be used, and the company will then be able to compete in rapid passenger service between the points above mentioned. This will also mean a double track road from this city to Portage, and possibly through to Mukwanago. The building of this new cut-off, to be used mainly for fast trains, would not materially affect the towns along the old line between here and Mukwanago, but would enable the company to handle its business more satisfactorily to itself and the public. If this new branch is built, as above set forth, it will mean much for Stevens Point—and there will be other good things that will follow.

Arrested for Assault

John Kaniewski, a well known character, is being tried before Judge Murat today, having been arrested on the charge of entering the home of Mrs. Garsamka, on Prairie street, and assaulting that lady.

Bride Will Not Change Name

Albert Crueger of Milwaukee, and Miss Minnie Crueger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Crueger, 218 Prairie street, will be married at 8 o'clock tomorrow evening at the bride's home. Rev. B. O. Richter, pastor of the Evangelical Lutheran church will tie the nuptial knot. Members of the bride's family and several intimate friends will witness the important ceremony and partake of supper to be served later in the evening. The newly wedded couple will leave here for their future home in Milwaukee on the 2:30 o'clock train Friday morning.

Albert was a resident of Stevens Point for a short time, but moved to Milwaukee a year or more ago and is now employed as a barber there. He and his bride will immediately go to house-keeping at 683 Seventh street. The well wishes of their many friends will be extended.

Carroll College Glee Club

A glee club composed of young men students attending Carroll College, Waukesha, is now on a concert tour throughout the state and will appear at First Presbyterian church in this city next Saturday evening, April 9th. Admission of 25 and 15 cents will be collected. Following is from the Wausau Record-Herald, which city the club visited last week:

The Carroll College Glee club gave a pleasing entertainment Saturday evening at the First Presbyterian church, and the program from beginning to end was well arranged and nicely rendered. The choruses were attractive and well sung and the reader, Miss McLean, was particularly talented, giving several selections brightly and with clever interpretation. Mr. Brehm, the violin soloist, also merited the applause given his renditions, while the duet between Messrs. Textor and Ross was well worth the admission alone.

BUYS FURNITURE BUSINESS

Adam R. Boyer Purchases the Stock of H. J. Mersch on Strong's Avenue.

The final transfer was made this afternoon by which Adam R. Boyer comes into possession of the furniture and undertaking business conducted for the past few years by M. J. Mersch at 210 Strong's avenue. The latter gentleman and several other parties in this city and county contemplate purchasing a large tract of timber land in Crook county, Oregon, and Mr. Mersch will go west in a couple of weeks to look over the property. He is familiar with timber estimating, having followed this calling in the past.

For the past nine years Mr. Boyer had been associated with F. E. Rose, now the undertaker at 421 Main street, and for six years previously worked for his predecessor, C. H. Grant. Adam is a licensed undertaker and is thoroughly familiar with the furniture business in all its branches. He has the respect and confidence of the community and is bound to succeed in his present venture.

Cases in Circuit Court

Court convened again this morning after a recess since Saturday, and the case of Victoria Nowak vs. Geo. Hoffmann is still on trial. This is the last jury case for the term, and will probably be concluded tomorrow.

Eva V. Jeffers, administratrix of the estate of Louis Jeffers, vs. the Green Bay & Western R. Co. After being on trial from Monday until Thursday, the court took the case from the jury, after long arguments by the respective attorneys, and directed a verdict for the defendant. A stay of proceedings for twenty days was granted to enable attorneys for the plaintiff to file written notice to set aside the verdict and for a new trial. Among the witnesses who were here from Green Bay were F. A. Loeffs, F. W. Welby, L. M. Dingman, O. Gallagher, Wm. Poquette, Jas. Voes, Robt. Barleman, John Vandenoob and Frank Clauswet.

Gave a Good Entertainment

Every seat in the auditorium of St. Paul's M. E. church was occupied last Wednesday evening when the Girls' Glee Club of Lawrence College, Appleton, gave a concert. Because of the reputation which preceded the young ladies, something out of the ordinary in the musical line was expected, and none were disappointed. Their voices blended remarkably well, and another important consideration—they articulated so distinctly that it was easy to follow the words without the aid of the printed program. The readings by Miss Eloise Stroud and Miss Gladys Johnson were so thoroughly enjoyed that each of the young ladies was compelled to respond to two encores. Miss Nina Coye's many friends were pleased to note that she was an important factor in the evening's entertainment, Miss Coye not only taking part in the vocal numbers but also acted as accompanist for several of the selections and was a prominent character in the playette, "Georgia's Cousins."

NEURALGIA OF THE HEART

This Ailment Was the Cause of Mrs. S. G. Stoddard's Sudden Death—Funeral Services Tomorrow.

It is with deep regret that we chronicle the death of Mrs. S. G. Stoddard, which sad and sudden event occurred at the family home, corner of Wisconsin and Elk streets, at 3:15 o'clock last Monday afternoon. Mrs. Stoddard had been in rather poor health for a year or more, suffering with rheumatism, and a couple of weeks ago was taken with the grippe, but was able to be up and get about the house nearly all the time. Part of Monday forenoon the lady remained in bed, but arose before the noon hour and shortly after eating dinner complained of severe pains in her heart. The family physician was summoned and did everything possible to relieve his patient, but neuralgia of the heart had attacked her in a very severe form and she passed away at the hour above noted. Her death was entirely unexpected even to those about the bedside, as she was conscious until almost the last moment.

Ursula Alice Whittaker was born in Pennsylvania, Aug. 8, 1844, making her nearly 66 years of age. She was twice married, her first husband being Mr. Cole, who died a number of years ago, and in 1863 she was united in marriage at Dancy to S. G. Stoddard. With the exception of six years when they lived at Chamberlain, S. Dak., Mr. and Mrs. Stoddard were residents of Dancy until moving here ten years ago. The deceased lady's parents were Allan Whittaker and wife, pioneer residents of the town of Plover. The only immediate member of the Whittaker family still living is one sister, Mrs. Geo. H. Altenburg, who recently went from this city to Dancy for the summer. Mrs. Stoddard also leaves, besides her husband, one son, W. A. Cole of Kansas City. He will be unable to attend the funeral on account of illness, but Mrs. Altenburg and her husband arrived here on the afternoon train Tuesday.

Services will be held at the house at 10 o'clock Thursday morning by Rev. C. F. Spray, pastor of St. Paul's M. E. church. Hymns will be sung by a quartette composed of W. B. Buckingham, W. J. Shumway, Mrs. Spray and Mrs. U. J. Kelsey, after which the remains will be taken by team to what is known as the Maine cemetery below Plover village, where they will be laid at rest beside her parents and other members of the family who have gone before. Those who will act as pallbearers are M. H. Charles and H. A. Altenburg, Clarence Whittaker, Anton Prain, Jr., and Robt. K. McDonald, all except the latter being nephews of the deceased lady.

Mrs. Stoddard was a woman of superior mental endowments, a true friend and good neighbor and her death is a distinct loss to the community. To the bereaved husband and sister, the sympathy of many friends is extended in this sad hour.

An Interesting Session

The Woman's Club met in regular bi-weekly meeting last Saturday and the principal paper of the afternoon was of unusual interest and vastly entertaining. It was prepared and read by Miss Katharine Rod, who described from personal experience "A Day at Stratford-on-Avon." Shakespeare's home. Miss Rod spent several weeks in the vicinity of the gifted writer's home and her happy faculties of observation and description made her paper team with interesting anecdotes. A paper on "Flies as agencies of contagion and pollution," was read by Mrs. F. H. Patterson, and Mrs. E. W. Sellers discussed Halley's comet, both subjects coming under the head of current topics. Mrs. John R. Brinker read a paper on "Woman," which denoted thoughtful research, and Miss Claire Collins favored the club with a piano solo.

FOR CATARRH

Medicine Free in Every Case Where It Fails to Relieve.

Neglect or pessimism, we believe, is the greatest enemy the public has to contend with when applied to the loss or recovery of health. Practically every case of consumption might have been cured if hope had been maintained and proper treatment had been resorted to at the first symptom of the disease. Until the advanced stage is reached consumption is curable. Catarrh is responsible, we believe, for many cases of consumption. It is about catarrh we want to talk to you today, incidentally consumption, since the two are so closely allied.

We have a medicine made from a prescription of one of the most successful catarrh specialists known. We believe it is positively without an equal. We are so satisfied that we are right, that we will supply the medicine free in every instance where it is used according to directions for a reasonable length of time, should it fail to give satisfaction in every particular. We want every one to try this medicine at our risk. There are no conditions attached to our offer. We put the user under no obligation to us whatever.

The medicine we want you to try is Rexall Mucu-Tone. It is a catarrh remedy that goes direct to the seat of trouble. It is carried by the blood to every part of the system. It purifies and enriches the blood, tones up the mucous cells, and brings about a condition of health and strength that tends to prevent the germs of consumption from getting a start. Besides this, Rexall Mucu-Tone is a wonderful appetizer, digestive aid and flesh builder. Its good effects are often felt from the very first dose. It is one of the largest and most satisfactory selling medicines that we have ever had anything to do with.

We know so much of the great good that it has done that we personally back it up with our reputation and money, which fact should be ample guarantee to satisfy anybody. Rexall Mucu-Tone comes in two sizes, 50 cents and $1.00. We urge you to try it. Remember you can obtain Rexall Remedies in Stevens Point only at our store—The Rexall Store. The Alex Krembs Jr. Drug Co., corner Main street and Strong's avenue.

Another Straw. To anyone who has kept even casually in touch with the trend of public opinion for the last six months, no "straws" are needed to indicate the feeling as to the tariff. However, a most significant one is reported from Republican Massachusetts, the home of Senator Lodge and from a district of the Old Bay state which has always been considered one of the safest Republican strongholds.

In this district the Fourteenth—E. N. Foss, the Democratic candidate for congress was elected by a majority of 5,640 votes. The majority of his Republican predecessor was 14,250, so that the vote for Mr. Foss represents a change of nearly 20,000 votes.

The fight was made with the tariff and the increased cost of living as the issues and Senator Lodge himself took an active part in the campaign. The result cannot be regarded otherwise than as indicating most unmistakably the dissatisfaction of the people with the Republican party and its broken promises of tariff reform.

President Taft may declaim as to the merit of the Aldrich tariff and may continue to rail at the newspapers which criticize this attitude. But he cannot change the facts, which are that the people have tired of Republican protestations and are turning to the Democratic party as the organization which can and will bring about a change in national affairs which will relieve the most intolerable conditions which now obtain.

The bye election in Missouri a few weeks ago, followed now by the Democratic landslide in the Fourteenth Massachusetts district are big with meaning to any person whose reasoning faculties are not completely absent. There can be but one interpretation, and, if the Republican leaders cannot read the handwriting on the wall they must indeed be blind.

However, they may as well continue to stand pat. President Taft has committed himself and his party irrevocably to the proposition that the present tariff law is the best ever enacted. Whatever popular protest may come, they cannot recede from this position. They must fight it out and the skirmishes which precede the general engagement convey to them nothing but forecasts of complete disaster in November.—Milwaukee News.

Reason for Her Choice.

SURVEY ASSISTANTS TOWNS

Offers Free Engineering Service in Planning and Building Good Roads and Good Bridges—Best is Cheapest.

A letter has recently been sent to all town chairmen in the state. It contains an offer of assistance which all towns having roads or bridges to build this season should take advantage of without fail. It is beginning to be recognized by everybody that if we are to get the best results for our money spent on roads and bridges we should do the work according to the best knowledge of the times. The road building methods of our fathers have proved a failure when modern conditions must be met.

With the present high cost of everything we buy, it behooves us to get the most for our money. We cannot go on building expensive roads in such a manner that they last but a short time; and when we build a bridge it should be of the most substantial, permanent character so that it won't wash out with the freshets it is subjected to. Every new bridge should have a concrete floor, so expensive replanking will be unnecessary.

The highway division of the geological survey has saved many towns considerable money on roads and bridges. Their last report gives a picture of a fine bridge in Barron county on which the town chairman states they saved the town $1,500. The good roads about the state which they have assisted in building are highly pleasing to the communities where they have been constructed.

With such a record of helpfulness and money saving as this division has, it would seem that every chairman who does not ask for their free assistance when he has a road or bridge to build, is doing himself and his town a great injustice.

This letter comes from W. O. Hotchkiss, chief of the highway division of the geological and natural history survey, who may be addressed at Madison for further information.

Death of John Collins.

John Collins, of Rhinelander, died at a St. Paul hospital on Monday of last week, and the remains were interred at Rhinelander on Wednesday. Mr. Collins married Miss Mary Davis, a Stevens Point young lady, several years ago, and she preceded him to the world beyond less than two years ago. Mr. Collins was a roadmaster on the Soo road, and shortly after his wife's death, after walking to town from where he had a crew at work, it was discovered that a nail in his shoe had caused a blister to form on one of his toes. This in a short time became cancerous, and although the toe was later amputated, the poison had already spread through his system and he gradually failed to the end. Mr. Collins had been at St. Paul for the past year or more, his parents and two sisters residing there. A brother, D. B. Collins, of Fargo, N. D., married another Stevens Point girl, Miss Sannie Welsby. Jerry Collins, of Fond du Lac, is also a brother. The deceased was 51 years of age.

Wanted at once, experienced dining room girl at River Pines Sanatorium.

TO SURVEY ENTIRE STATE

Many Cities Investigate to Get at Root of Evils Responsible for Consumption.

Unusual interest has been aroused by the action of the Racine common council in granting the Racine Anti-Tuberculosis society permission to erect a hospital for advanced cases of consumption to be maintained in connection with the existing isolation hospital. Outside of Milwaukee, Racine is the first city in Wisconsin to provide a hospital for advanced cases, but this step is in process of formation at Madison, LaCrosse, Kenosha, Oshkosh and other large cities.

The "survey," in other words getting the facts concerning tuberculosis, begun by the Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis association, is meeting with gratifying support all over the state, although the investigation is only in its infancy. All cities having visiting nurses' associations are starting investigations with the assistance of the state association. The work is progressing in Milwaukee with much greater facility than expected, under existing circumstances and as soon as the survey is well under way in the metropolis, Miss Kathrene Gedney, graduate of the state university, who is in charge of the work, will start through the state, which will be fully covered as speedily as possible.

Under the direction of Mrs. Hooper, one of the leading members of the Women's club at Oshkosh, the conditions are being investigated in that city and Miss Gedney has been called upon to assist. All deaths from consumption in Oshkosh will be located on a large map; the conditions surrounding each ascertained, and steps formulated to prevent further progress of the disease. Meanwhile existing cases will be taken care of.

A bureau of information has been established by the association at Milwaukee and is ready for all inquiries and information. The general offices are in the Goldsmith building, Milwaukee.

Gymnasium Work Popular.

That 1,796 men are registered in the gymnasium classes, indoor and outdoor sports at the University of Wisconsin this year is shown by the annual report of the athletic director.

All freshmen and sophomores are required to take gymnastic work, and 15 branches are offered them to choose from. There are 778 first year and 681 second year men enrolled in the required work, making a total of 1,459 lowerclassmen in physical training. Besides these there are many upperclassmen who have continued their training, either in indoor or outdoor sports.

Besides the 398 students in the regular gymnasium classes and the 60 in the special class for the physically deficient under the direction of the medical examiner, there are 303 in the cross country work and running; 147 in rowing, including 117 for the freshman crew and 30 for the "Varsity"; 133 in swimming; 190 in track work, including 50 freshmen, 74 sophomores, and 60 upperclassmen; 108 in basket ball, 90 being freshmen and 18 sophomores; 107 freshmen and sophomores in indoor baseball; 101 in football; 89 in base ball, 54 being upperclassmen and 35 freshmen; 65 sophomores in gymnastic dancing; 50 freshmen and sophomores in fencing; 25 underclassmen in advanced apparatus work; and 20 in tumbling.

JUDGING A GOOD HORSE

According to David Buffum, an expert breeder of horses, the first thing to learn in the science of horsemanship is the fine points of a good horse. In Farm and Fireside he says that the most important part of a horse and the first thing to examine is the horse's feet and legs, for if he is deficient in this respect no superiority in other points and no qualities in breeding or disposition can offset it. The best chair or table in the world is useless if it has only three or two legs.

For these points the feet of the horse should be symmetrical, neither too deep nor too flat, but if falling in either respect they had better be too deep than too flat. It may often happen that on soft and level country roads a flat foot may not occasion much trouble, but it is bad on hard roads or in cities and is in all cases a defect in conformation.

The limbs should be clean—that is, free from fleshiness—but have plenty of bone and substance. The fore legs should be relatively short from the fetlock joint up to the knee and long from the knee up to the horse's body. This is a very important point, as no horse was ever good for much on the road whose knees were too high up.

The hind legs should be flat as well as clean. This excessive cleanliness goes with highly bred horses and is to be insisted on in all horses that properly belong in that class, such as thoroughbreds, trotters, hackneys, etc. In colder blooded horses we should demand at least a reasonable approach to it. The gambrel joint should be strong and well developed, near slender or "dandified," and it is also desirable to have it relatively near the ground, though this is not as important as the position of the fore knee.

The horse should stand square on his legs with his feet well under him, and his hoofs should be straight fore and aft, neither toeing in nor toeing out.

For the body of the horse the back should be short.

The hind quarters should be well developed, with the hip joints well forward. The rump should not be straight, but rather straight than drooping—that is, the line from the top of the hips to the root of the tail should be only moderately oblique.

The shoulders should be slanting, not upright, and the withers reasonably high. This conformation makes a strong as well as elegant shoulder.

The body should be nicely rounded, neither gaunt nor "potbellied," and should be ribbed well up toward the hips.

The chest should be deep rather than wide, giving large lung capacity.

The neck should be free from undue fleshiness. It may be either long or short, as far as utility is concerned, the long, of course, being much more elegant and therefore to be preferred on well bred horses. In either case it should be bent a little just before the point where it joins the head, so as to give the conformation that we call "clean cut in the throat," a structure that gives the breathing apparatus free play.

The head in well bred horses should be small and almost as clean and bony as the limbs. The face line viewed from the side should be straight, not aquiline. The forehead should be flat between the eyes. The eyes should be of medium size, set well apart from each other and not too near the top of the head, and the head when viewed from the front should slant in a little from the eyes upward. The ears should be fine, thin and pointed and of medium length, and they should be so set on that when pointed forward they are parallel, not slanting apart.

These points of equine perfection are absolute, and therefore they apply to all kinds of horses. In judging horses of different types the difference must be in the application, not in the standard itself, for a good horse must be homogeneous in his makeup, every part in harmony with other parts, and every part must have such modification and proportion as conduces to that end.

Hog Hints.

Charcoal is a great tonic for the hogs.

For quick money nothing can beat hogs.

Pasturage is necessary in economical pork production.

Protection from the weather will make the feed go further.

A ration rich in protein is the only ration fit for the brood sow.

A sow should never be in marketable condition when she is bred.

The shorter the fattening period the greater the profit from the pen.

THE EYE OF AN ARTIST.

A Case Where It Was More Reliable Than a Sailor's Optic.

Mr. N. Chevalier, the well known artist who accompanied the late Duke of Edinburgh on many of his travels, was once going from Dunedin to Lyttelton, New Zealand, by steamer. Anxious to catch the earliest glimpse of the coast, he went on deck at dawn and was alarmed to see that the vessel was heading straight on to the land. Calling the officer's attention to the fact, he was told that it was only a fog bank. The artist maintained his point, but the second officer looked and confirmed his mate.

The artist then said, "Well, gentlemen, I will back my artist's eye against your sailor's eye, and I say that what you mistake for a fog bank is a low range of hills, and there is a range of mountains appearing above them."

But he was only laughed at until the captain, coming on deck, found in the growing light that the artist was right and the seamen wrong. The vessel was out of its course, and there was only just time to avert disaster. The helmsman was dismissed in disgrace and the course given to a new steersman, but the vessel's head still pointed landward—the compass was all wrong.

The cause was discovered later. A commercial traveler had brought a box of magnets on board and deposited them in a stern cabin, causing what might have been a fatal deflection of the compass.

To return to the question of interpretation, the artist was dealing with the appearances which his eye was trained to see and his mind to interpret. A speck on the horizon might have remained a mere speck to him long after the sailors had interpreted the speck into a vessel of definite rig. There can be little doubt that the trained eye is accompanied by a sort of mental seeing—an instinct outrunning optics.

FRIENDLY ADVICE.

Josh Billings' Parting Shot to a Cheeky Drummer.

About Christmas time once the sometime famous Josh Billings, humorist, was on his way to his old home at Lanesboro, Mass. On the train were three traveling men who wanted a game of whist. One of them pointed to an unpretentious and unprepossessing Josh and said:

"Let's ask Rube into the game and count some of the hayseed out of his hair."

"My venerable friend," he said as he laid his hand on the shoulder of the old man, "will you join us in a game of whist?"

"Ya-as; we will get there in about three hours," replied Josh, putting his hand to his ear.

"You don't seem to understand," said the young fellow in a louder tone. "We want you to take a hand!"

"Ya-as; the stand o' corn has been unusual good this year."

"My friend," the young fellow then yelled, "will you take a hand in a game?"

"Ya-as; I was tellin' Mandy this mornin' how plenty an' how fat the game is this year."

"Oh, you go to the devil!" shouted the young fellow as he took his seat, while the other drummers unmercifully pestered him.

When Lanesboro was reached the old fellow got up, handed one of his Josh Billings cards to each one of the trio and then said to his interlocutor:

"Young man, while you are traveling on your cheek don't get any hayseed on your clothes or the other drummers will take you for a Rube and get you into some game and skin you."—Pittsburg Dispatch

What Bothered Her.

"Some women are very selfish," said a woman speaker at a banquet. "They remind me of the woman who visited a fortune teller.

"Lady," said the fortune teller, shuffling the cards, "fate decrees that you will visit foreign lands. You will mingle in the court life of kings and queens. Conquering all rivals, you will marry the man of your choice, a tall, dark, handsome gent of distinguished ancestry—in fact, a peer of the realm."

"Will he be young?"

"Yes; young and rich."

"The visitor in her excitement clutched the seer's arm.

"But how," she cried eagerly—"how am I to get rid of my present husband?"

Goaded.

Saving became a passion with the man and the woman. No privation was too great if so by it they might add to their accumulations. And they labored jointly. The woman's sacrifice was in every respect equal to that of the man.

But when they had amassed $10,000 the man, because he had the power, took the money and purchased with it not the automobile which he had led his faithful wife to expect, but a home. "Brute!" she cried, and when next a mob of suffragettes came that way she joined them. Who could blame her?—Puck.

A Light Eater.

"Look here!" exclaimed the landlady, who had agreed to board and lodge a man at reduced rates. "You told me you were a light eater."

"So I am, ma'am," replied the boarder. "I'm the 'human salamander' at the local music hall. You ought to see me swallow burnin' torches!"—London Scraps.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Articles and Items of News that Appeared in the Columns of The Gazette, Quarter of a Century Ago Today.

Mrs. Robt. Wilson, aged 65 years, died at her home in the town of Sharon, last Friday.

John Rennie and Adam Kuhl have been enjoying a week's vacation from their studies at Racine College.

Stenger; city atty., W. W. O'Keefe; aldermen, H. Curran, John Knaut, D. J. Ellenwood, P. Lukasevitz, A. Janausky.

The Wisconsin House barn was destroyed by fire last evening at about 9:30 o'clock and a horse, cow and dog burned to death. On account of the close proximity of the barn to other buildings and owing to the fact that a high wind was blowing at the time, it was feared that great property loss would result from the fire, but the gallant work done by the fire department saved the city from an expensive conflagration.

"Der Gold Unkel" is the title of a German comedy that was presented by home talent at McCulloch's hall, last Monday evening. Those who took part were John Stumpf, Leo Hirsch, Chas. Schenk, N. ## OBITUARY

J. D. ANDREWS.

At 10:30 o'clock last Thursday night Jeremiah D. Andrews passed away at his home, 315 Dixon street in this city after an illness of about one week with erysipelas and stomach trouble. Since December 4, 1908, however, he had been in poor health, the result of falling from a roof which he was shingling, fracturing one of his hips, which confined him to his bed for several months, and he had been a cripple ever since.

Mr. Andrews was born at Cobleskill, Schoharie county, N. Y., Jan. 8, 1843, and came to Wisconsin with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Andrews, when a small boy and they resided in Columbia and Richland counties for a time, arriving in Stevens Point in 1857, taking up their residence in the town of Linwood. He served in the Union army for three years and four months, having enlisted in Co. E, 18th Wisconsin Inf., and during the service lost one of his eyes. Upon his return home he was married to Miss Sarah Langton of Plover, who died a few years later, as did also their two children. Aug. 23, 1870, he was married to Miss Genevieve LaMere and to them ten children were born, eight of whom, together with the widow, survive him. One son, James, was killed a couple of years ago by being run down by a train near Rudolph. The surviving children are Mrs. Ruth Goodin of Linwood, Mrs. Clara Shepreau of this city, Mrs. Effie Shaurette of Birchwood, Louis Andrews of Sauk Rapids, Minn., David and Mrs. Sadie Dixon of this city, Mrs. Pearl Horst of Hamilton and Frank Andrews, also of this city. One sister, Mrs. D. B. Wood of Bellfontaine, Ohio, and one brother, S. W. Andrews of this city, are also left. Mr. Andrews and family lived in Linwood for many years, removing to Stevens Point about fifteen years ago. In the early days he followed the life of a riverman and woodsman, but during later years had been employed as a carpenter.

The funeral was held from the residence at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon, Rev. E. M. Thompson of the Episcopal church officiating, with interment in Union cemetery. The pallbearers, selected from members of the G. A. R., were Wm. Reading, Enoch Bean, E. M. Copps, S. G. Stoddard, Walter Whitaker and Henry Johnson. Those present from outside were Louis Andrews and wife of Sauk Rapids, Minn., Mrs. Hugo Horst of Hamilton, Louis LaMere and wife of Mosinee, Mrs. Effie Shaurette of Birchwood, and Frank Pascavis and wife of Meehan.

T. J. Cunningham, editor of the Chippewa Falls Independent, in a recent editorial combed the hair of H. H. Manson, of Wausau, chairman of the Democratic state central committee, the wrong way. Mr. Manson does not wish to serve longer in his official political capacity, but has not called a meeting of the committee to choose his successor, hence the rancor on the part of our friend Tom. A meeting, however, will soon be held, and it is predicted that whoever is chosen as successor to the present able, efficient and courteous young chairman will have "easier sailing" in the future than he has in the past.

SAUSAU WANTS THE SOO

She is Anxious That a Cut-Off be Built From Stevens Point to Prentice, via Wausau.

The Wausau Record-Herald, a few days ago, devoted over a column in giving plausible reasons why it would be to the advantage of the Soo railway company to extend its line from Stevens Point to connect with its other lines at Prentice and going via Wausau. It is certain that the Soo company is in the field for business, and will spare no expense to get it, including the supplying of the paper mills along the Wisconsin river valley with Canadian pulp timber, and the hauling to market of the finished product. This would mean an immense increase in their revenues, and as said by our Wausau neighbor a cut-off could easily be built from here via Wausau, Merrill and Grandfather to connect with the Ashland division at Prentice. With the paper mill industry fully developed in Portage, Marathon and Lincoln counties, this cut-off line would be the means of adding fifty carloads of freight to that company's daily business in the pulpwood line alone. The shipments would cover a distance of a thousand miles and more. That the building of a cut-off of this nature would net the company ample profits on its investment cannot be doubted and the fact that the company is one of the wealthiest in the land would ensure the carrying out of its plans.

Another factor which makes it evident that the Soo company desires to reach the paper mill industry in Wisconsin is its purchase of the Wisconsin & Northern railway, whereby it will be enabled to reach the Fox and Wolf river mills in the vicinity of Appleton. The shipping of pulp wood from Canada to Wisconsin, Minnesota and Northern Michigan is a profitable one and with the mentioned additions to the Soo railway, that company will be enabled to reach practically every important paper mill in the state. It is therefore evident that the Soo railway will eventually extend its line to Wausau.

A cut-off from Prentice to Stevens Point, via Wausau, would also enable the company to increase its passenger and freight business materially, as its Minneapolis branch would still retain the business which that company has at Marshfield.

DIED WHILE ALL ALONE

Chas. H. Gaylord, Former Sheriff of This County, Dies Unexpectedly at His Home at Whiting.

Chas. H. Gaylord, former sheriff of Portage county and a well known citizen, died very suddenly and unexpectedly Tuesday morning. Mr. Gaylord, who had been employed as watchman by the Wisconsin River Paper Co. for several years, lived with his sons, Jay and Glen, aged 19 and 16 respectively, at the northeast corner of the block of paper mill houses, taking their meals at the boarding house. He had been in failing health for several months, but was able to move about the house each day and visited among friends in this city about three weeks ago. One of his neighbors, Frank Smith, visited with him for an hour or more Monday evening, at which time he seemed no worse than he had been for a couple of weeks or more, during which time he suffered greatly, and when the two sons left at about 6:30 to get their breakfast and go to work at the mill, there was no apparent change for the worse. At about 7:30 Mrs. Nettie Johnson, who runs the boarding house, went to the Gaylord residence with his breakfast and was shocked to find him apparently dead. She immediately telephoned to Dr. Walters, who responded in a short time, but the latter could do nothing but confirm the fact that his patient had apparently passed away shortly before Mrs. Johnson reached the house, Bright's disease, dropsy and heart trouble being the cause of his death.

The deceased was 56 years old Feb. 28 last, born at New Haven, Conn., and had been a resident of Stevens Point since 1878. After his arrival here he worked as a woodsman for several years, being employed by J. S. Mitchell and others. When Mr. Mitchell was elected as sheriff, Mr. Gaylord was appointed as undersheriff, and also served as deputy for Sheriff Wheelock. In the fall of 1900 he was elected as sheriff, defeating J. M. Kluck. He also served on the local police force for a couple of years, but for the past seven years had lived at the paper mills with his two boys, to whom he was deeply attached. His wife passed away several years ago.

Mr. Gaylord was a man of good ability and had the capacity of making and retaining friends, being of a social nature, kind hearted and true to his friends. He was well known throughout the county, and all will be sorry to learn of his death.

The funeral will take place at 3 o'clock Thursday afternoon from the Boston Undertaking Co. rooms, where the body was brought and prepared for burial. Services will be held at the Presbyterian church, Rev. J. A. Stemen officiating, followed by interment in Forest cemetery.

Only Daughter Dies.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Cornelius have the sympathy of many friends in the loss of their little daughter, Ruth, who passed away at 1 o'clock last Saturday morning after an illness of about three months, the last two weeks of which she suffered with inflammation of the brain and other complications. Little Ruth was the only daughter in the family and was 6 years old on the 21st of last August. She had attended the Fifth ward school and was an exceptionally bright and attractive child, kind and good, loved by schoolmates and teacher. Besides her parents she leaves a younger brother, Frederick, Mrs. Joseph Michaels, of Chicago, and Miss Anna Zimmer, of Green Bay, sisters of Mrs. Cornelius, had been here assisting in the care of their little niece for over a week before the end.

The funeral took place from the residence at 2:30 Monday afternoon, Rev. C. F. Spray officiating, followed by interment in Forest cemetery. Hymns were sung by Mrs. C. F. Raymond and W. J. Shumway. C. F. Thoms, J. W. Merry, P. R. Roe and Jas. Ballou acted as pallbearers.

Fair and Racing Circuit.

Representatives of the different fairs in this circuit met at Merrill last Wednesday, all cities being represented except Stevens Point. Secretary A. E. Bourn had been authorized to attend and went to the Soo station to catch the west-bound freight for Junction City, there to connect with the passenger train on the Valley road, but on his arrival there was informed that the freight would not be able to pull out until 8 o'clock, being two hours late. Mr. Bourn then telephoned to M. H. Duncan of Wausau to act as his proxy. The circuit was organized by electing F. J. Smith, of Merrill, as president; A. G. Cox, of Osseo, as vice president; and Robt. Clark, of Chippewa Falls, as secretary and treasurer. Others present were Mr. Duncan of Wausau, Paul C. Wilson of Menomonie, and C. S. Van Auker, of LaCrosse.

At this time the following dates for holding fairs were suggested, subject to ratification later by the officers of the different fair associations: Stevens Point, August 23 to 26; Merrill, August 30 to September 2; Wausau, September 6 to 9; Menomonie, September 20 to 23; LaCrosse, September 27 to 30.

Hotel Changes Hands.

Hotel Denver, which has been closed for the past ten days, is now the property of E. W. Sellers, or will be as soon as the deed is signed by Mrs. A. E. Darling, wife of the recent proprietor. Mrs. Darling is now in Denver, and Mr. Darling is in Chicago on his way west. This hotel property was sold by Fred H. Nye to Darling about three months ago, the former taking in payment a stock of merchandise at Hingham, Sheboygan county, and about one month ago the latter stepped down and out. For a couple of weeks the Denver continued business under the management of Will Cassidy and Mr. Martyn, an experienced chef, but owing to difficulties with which they were obliged to contend, these gentlemen closed the doors. In the transfer Mr. Darling secures a farm, located in the southern part of the state, and the new hotel proprietor announces that the Denver is for rent, and will be opened to the public in a very short time.

Burial of Late John Gardiner.

The remains of the late John Gardiner, of Spencer, were brought to Stevens Point for interment last Saturday afternoon, the funeral taking place direct from the train, with interment in Union cemetery. Mr. Gardiner was a member of the Marshfield Masonic fraternity, and in the morning a special car, filled with members of that order, went from the latter city to Spencer, where fifty-two marched in line, including several who reside at Spencer. After the funeral services at the residence of the deceased, the car, which contained the mourners, friends and Masons, was attached to train No. 12 on the Soo, arriving here about fifteen minutes late, and was met by relatives and a number of old friends, some of whom had known the deceased for over half a century. The services at the grave were conducted by the Masons, Dr. H. A. Lathrop of Marshfield acting as worshipful master, and were very impressive. The pallbearers, chosen from the local lodge of Masons, were F. S. Hyer, Walter Eddy, W. B. Buckingham, W. J. Shumway, Elliott Martin and J. D. Giles.

The funeral party from Spencer consisted of the widow, her son, Oscar, Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Hand and Mrs. John Kennedy, the ladies being daughters of the deceased, and Mesdames Follett, Bowdel and Heath.

Oscar, Mr. and Mrs. Hand and Mrs. Kennedy have been residing at Spokane, Wash., for some time, but the first named does not expect to return to the west. Another son, Don Gardiner, who also lives in Washington, was unable to reach here in time for the funeral.

The ceremony took place at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Strauss, and was witnessed by a number of friends of the young couple. Mr. and Mrs. Borchert will make their future home on a farm owned by the groom near Amherst Junction.
County Treasurer Dake, Mrs. Elsie G. Smiley, David Barrows of Jordan and Miss Grace Gibbs of Stockton formed a party which left here last Thursday morning for Bowman, N. Dak. The latter three go west with a view of taking up homesteads, but Mr. Dake expected to remain only a few days for the purpose of giving practical instructions to a number of amateur farmers who have gone from this city and county within the past several weeks. He also has a homestead of his own near Bowman.
Martin Schuelke, of Eau Claire, transacted business in the city on Monday, bringing a load of potatoes to market, for which he received the magnanimous sum of 10 cents per bushel. This together with the poor pieces of road he had to travel over, naturally did not have a tendency to add to his usual good nature. He found the roads the worst on St. Louis avenue, within the city limits, and between the boom house and the Soo crossing, in the town of Carson. It is high time for the city and town authorities to do something to improve these roads.
Following the example of other local fraternal orders, the Foresters and Knights of Columbus have arranged for a series of three card parties to be held at Foresters' hall. The first will be given tomorrow evening commencing at 8:30 o'clock and the others will take place on succeeding Thursday evenings. There is considerable rivalry among the members of these orders as to which are most expert at "smear," and it is expected that the hall will be full each evening. The losing society will provide a banquet for the winners at the close of the contest.

An important factor to their success, in almost every instance, you will find, was their bank account. Their bank deposits may not have been large, but their connection with the bank, coupled with their energy, honesty and character, was the basis of the credit they were able to establish, and through credit, success was possible.
If you are starting out for yourself without capital, by all means have a bank account with this bank. It will be a help to you in many ways. A checking account with us would save you money. D. 1910, at 10 o'clock A. M., or as soon thereafter as such matter can be reached, the following matter will be heard and considered: The petition of John Woyach and Elmer Steward Ammel for an order authorizing and directing the county surveyor of Portage County to survey and erect or construct permanent landmarks to mark all the section and quarter section corners of Section eight, Township twenty two, range nine east, in the town of Buena Vista, in said county, the costs of such survey to be apportioned among the several pieces of land benefited by such survey. Dumas' Wealth and Poverty. Alexandre Dumas' rise to wealth and luxury was almost as marvelous as that of his most celebrated hero. He built a magnificent chateau, which he named Monte Christo. There he entertained all comers, friend and stranger alike, with more than oriental magnificence and sometimes with oriental mystery. His purse was open to all who sought it, and the day came when he experienced Timon's fate without acquiring Timon's disposition. He could not become a misanthrope, though his fortune disappeared almost as suddenly as it came, and then he learned the ingratitude of men. His last days were passed not in poverty, but in narrow circumstances. He left Paris in the fall of 1870 just as the German army was closing in to besiege it and when France was feeling its deepest woe. To the last he preserved his gaiety and youthful spirit. "I had but one napoleon in my pocket when I first came here," he said. "I go away with two, and yet they call me a spendthrift."

Remedy or Disease. Broadway--They say Wooster's wife has kleptomania. Wallstreet--What is she taking for it? Broadway--Everything in sight.--New York Times.

Speechlessness Approved. "Those two statesmen are so angry they won't speak." "Well," answered Senator Sorghum, "that's better than starting a controversy."--Washington Star.

Stolen Joke. The shade of the ice baron had introduced himself to Charon on the river trip. "Quite a roomy bit of water, this Styx," he commented. "Never freezes over, does it?" "Not so's to interfere with navigation," said Charon smilingly, "and, by the way, that very fact gave Mephisto the idea for his favorite joke." "You don't say! What's the gag?" "Why, when a guest in hades complains of the scarcity of ice the old boy explains that it's due to the unprecedented perversity of the past winter!"--Buffalo Times.

Obedient Bobby. "Bobby, my son," exclaimed the dismayed mother as she saw all her boy's belongings stacked in a corner of the closet, "haven't I tried over and over to teach you that you should have a place for everything?" "Yes, mother," said the boy cheerfully, "and this is the place."--Ladies' Home Journal.

Diplomacy. The wife of a man who came home late insisted upon a reason. "When I go out without you," he said, "I do not enjoy myself half as much, and it takes me twice as long."--Success Magazine.

The Reply of a Statesman's Wife. "Does your husband believe in the separation of the church and the state?" "I guess so. He never goes to church."--Judge.

Nelson A. Aldrich, admittedly the leader of the republican party, says that the government should be conducted for $300,000,000 less each year than is now expended under republican administration. This is a good thing to show your republican neighbor. It may lead him to make investigation all along the line, in which event he will probably conclude that the time has come for a change in the administration of national affairs.

BAGGING A BIG TIGER

The Jungle Monarch Was Trapped Lolling In His Bath.

A FEAT OF MARKSMANSHIP.

Only the Brute's Head Showed Above the Water, and the Well Placed Bullet, Fired From an Elephant, Entered the Nostril and Broke His Neck.

An interesting account of a tiger hunt is given by one who had a wide experience in hunting this most dangerous of beasts. Mounted upon elephants, the writer and his companions had been beating the jungle without making a find until, as they were about to give up the search, a sudden disturbance among the elephants appeared to betoken a tiger near at hand. Giving directions to the others as to the order of marching their elephants, the writer ordered his mahout to turn into the thick feathered foliage to the left in search of a pool of water which he remembered to be there.

There was a slight descent to a long but narrow hollow about fifty or sixty yards wide. This was filled with clear water for an unknown length.

I was just about to make a remark when, instead of speaking, I gently grasped the mahout by the head as I leaned over the howdah and by this signal stopped the elephant.

There was a remarkable sight. About 120 yards distant on my right the head and neck of a large tiger, clean and beautiful, reposed above the surface of the water, while the body was cooling, concealed from view. Here was our friend enjoying his quiet bath, while we had been pounding away up and down the jungles which he had left.

"Fire at him," whispered the mahout, "or you will lose him! He will see us and be off."

"Hold your tongue!" I answered. "He can't see us, for the sun is at our back and is shining in his eyes. See how green they are."

At this moment the tiger quietly rose from his bath and sat up on end like a dog. I never saw such a sight. His head was beautiful, and the eyes shone like two green electric lights as the sun's rays reflected from them, but his huge body was dripping with muddy water, as he had been reclining upon the alluvial bottom.

For quite a minute the tiger sat up in the same position. At last, as if satisfied that he was in safety and seclusion, he once more lay down with only the head and neck exposed above the surface.

"Back the elephant gently, but do not turn around," I whispered. Immediately the elephant backed through the feathery tamarisk without the slightest sound, and we found ourselves outside the jungle. We could breathe freely.

"Go on, now, quite gently till I press your head, then turn to the right, descending through the tamarisk till I again touch your turban."

I counted the elephant's paces as she moved softly parallel with the jungle until I felt sure of my distance. A slight pressure upon the mahout's head and the elephant turned to the right. The waving plumes of the dark green tamarisk divided as we gently moved forward, and in another moment we stopped. There was the tiger in the same position, exactly facing me, but now about seventy-five paces distant.

"Keep the elephant quite steady," I whispered, and, sitting down upon the howdah seat, I took a rest with the rifle upon the front bar of the gun rack. A piece of tamarisk kept waving in the wind just in front of the rifle beyond my reach. The mahout leaned forward and gently bent it down. Now all was clear. The tiger's eyes were like green glass. The elephant for a moment stood like stone. I touched the trigger.

There was no response to the loud report of six drams of powder from the "five-seven-seven" rifle, no splash in the unbroken surface of the water. The tiger's head was still there, but in a different attitude, one-half below the surface and only one cheek and one large eye still glittering like an emerald above.

Upon examination it proved that there was no hole whatever in that tiger, the bullet having entered the nostril, broken the neck and run along the body. The animal consequently had never moved.

This tiger when laid out straight, but without being pulled to increase its length, measured exactly nine feet and eight inches from nose to tail.--Youth's Companion.

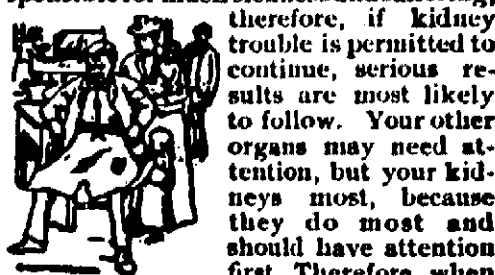

His Last Request.

Charles Dickens used to relate an anecdote of the last moments of Fauntleroy, the great banker, hanged for forgery in 1824. His elegant dinners had always been followed by some remarkable and matchless curacao, the source of which he kept a deep secret. Three of his boon companions had an interview with him in the condemned cell the day before his execution. They were about to retire when the most impressive of the three stepped back and said: "Fauntleroy, you stand on the verge of the grave. Remember the text, my dear man, that 'we brought nothing into this world, and it is certain we can take nothing out.' Have you any objection, therefore, to tell me now, as a friend, where you got that curacao?"

Life is fruitful in the ratio in which it is laid out in noble action or patient perseverance.--Liddon.

Often The Kidneys Are Weakened by Over-Work.

Unhealthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood.

Weak and unhealthy kidneys are responsible for much sickness and suffering, therefore, if kidney trouble is permitted to continue, serious results are most likely to follow. Your other organs may need attention, but your kidneys must, because they do most and should have attention first. Therefore, when your kidneys are weak or out of order, you can understand how quickly your entire body is affected and how every organ seems to fail to do its duty.

If you are sick or "feel badly," begin taking the great kidney remedy, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root. A trial will convince you of its great merit.

The mild and immediate effect of Swamp-Root, the great kidney and bladder remedy, is soon realized. It stands the highest because its remarkable health restoring properties have been proven in thousands of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best.

Sold by druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a pamphlet telling you how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. Mention this paper when writing to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, and don't let a dealer sell you something in place of Swamp-Root--if you do you will be disappointed.

Thousands of panic stricken depositors made a run on the bank of the Society for Savings at Cleveland, Ohio. The bank stood the run well, paying depositors as rapidly as they demanded. It is charged the run was due to false rumors spread by an enemy.

The Demon of the Air is the germ of la grippe, that breathed in brings suffering to thousands. Its after effects are weakness, nervousness, lack of appetite, energy, and ambition, with disordered liver and kidneys. The greatest need then is Electric Bitters, the splendid tonic, blood purifier and regulator of stomach, liver and kidneys. Thousands have proved that they wonderfully strengthen the nerves, build up the system and restore health and good spirits after an attack of grip. If suffering, try them. Only 50c. Perfect satisfaction guaranteed by H. D. McCulloch Co.

IF WOMEN ONLY KNEW

What a Heap of Happiness it Would Bring to Stevens Point Homes.

Hard to do housework with an aching back. Brings you hours of misery at leisure or at work.

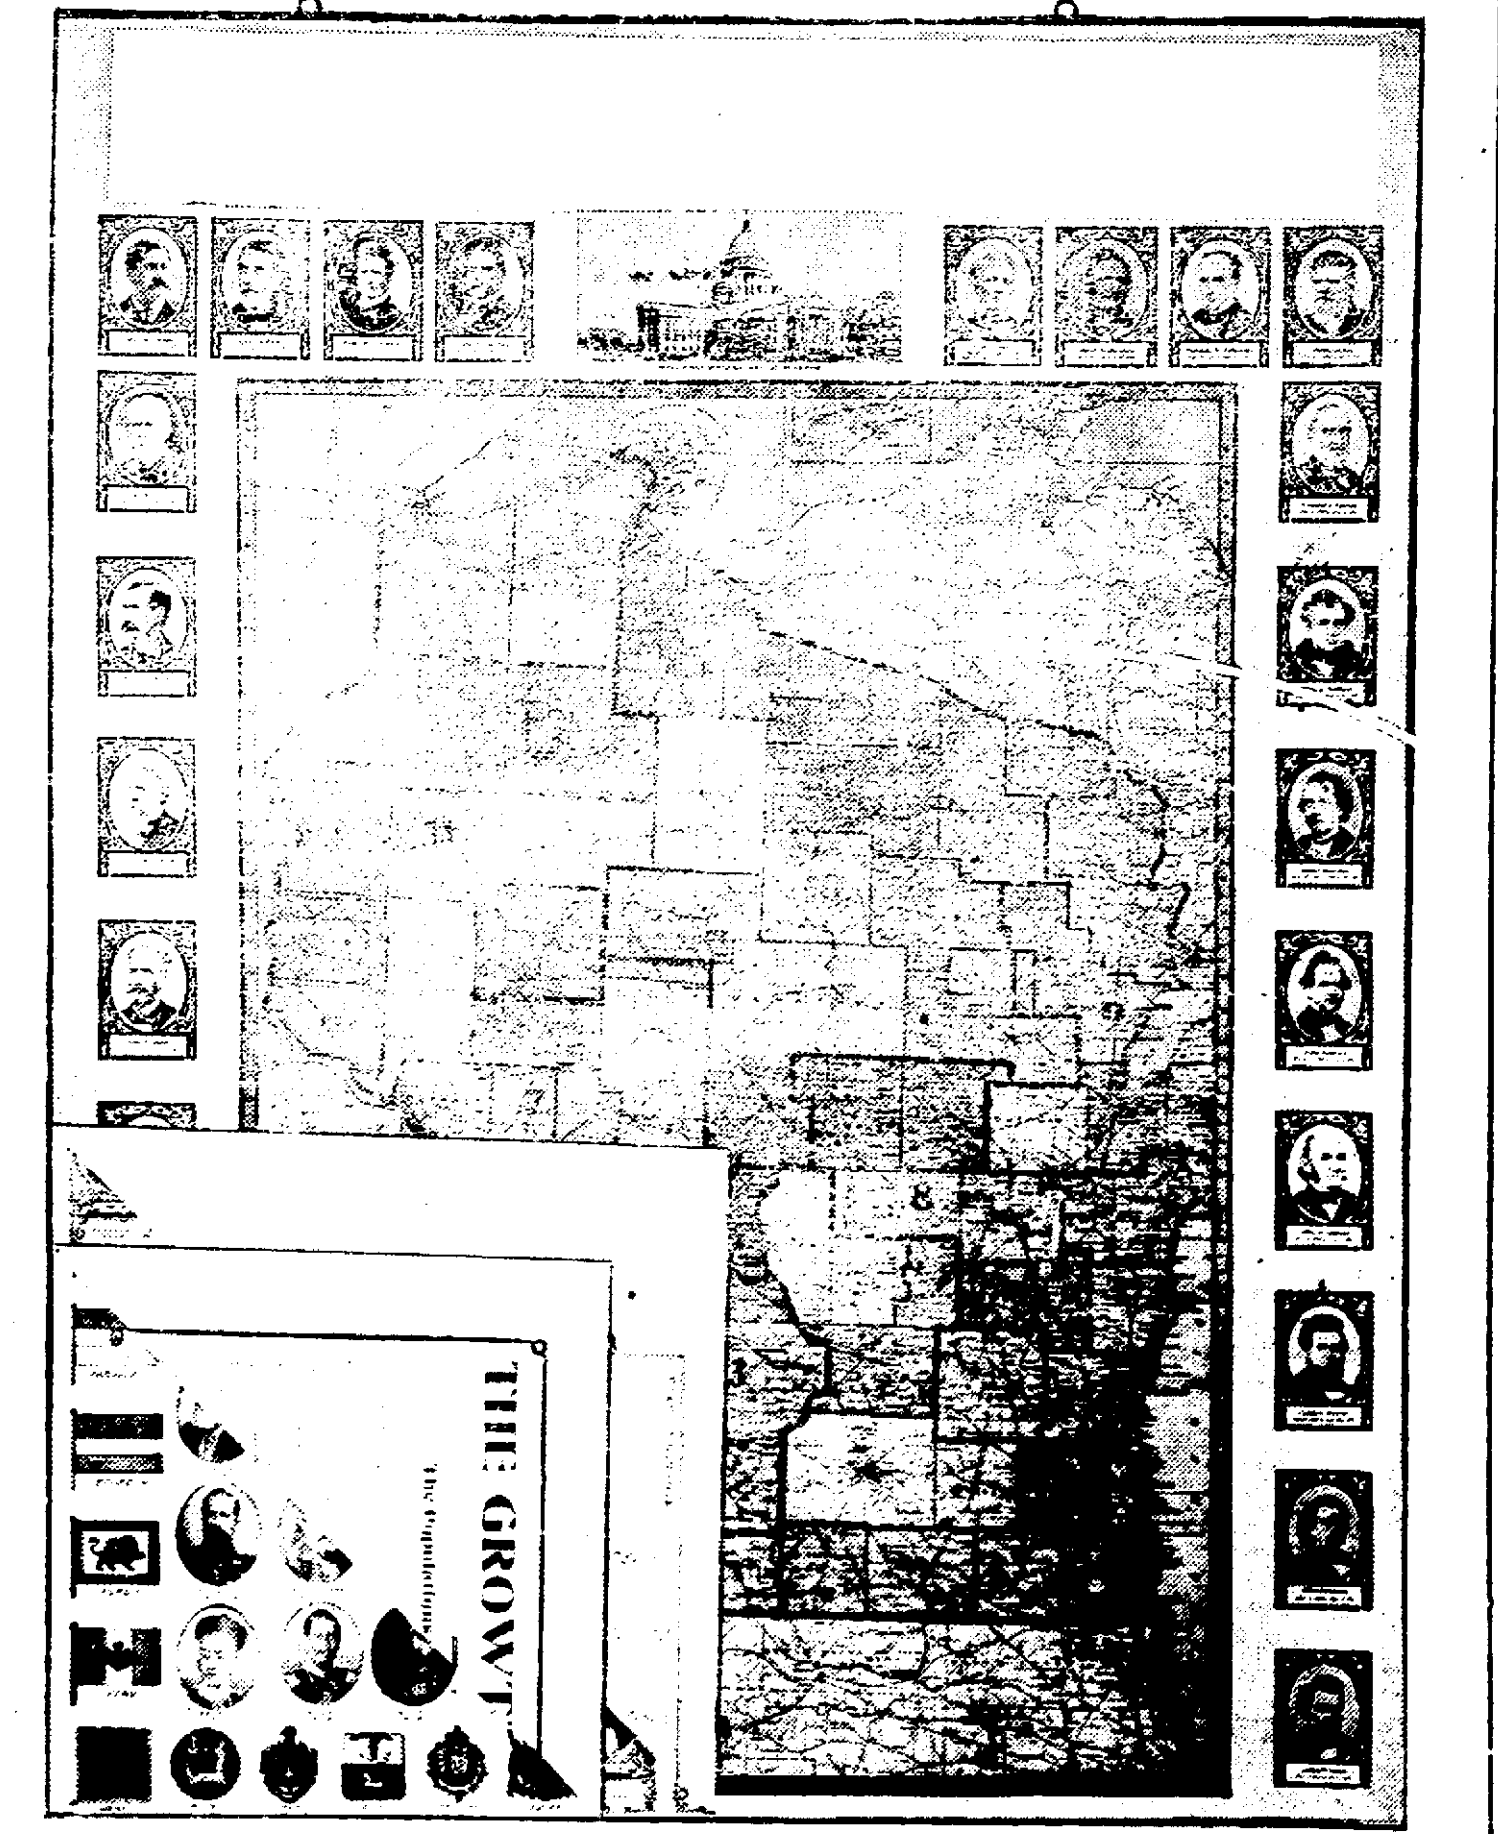

If women only knew the cause--that Backache pains come from sick kidneys. 'Twould save much needless woe. Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys.

Stevens Point people endorse this:

Mrs. O. A. Neumann, 410 Division street, Stevens Point, Wis., says: "I suffered from a lame and aching back for several years. My kidneys were also weak and the secretions from these organs were unnatural and irregular in passage. On a friend's advice, I procured Doan's Kidney Pills at Taylor Bros. drug store and began using them. The results were gratifying, and in return I gladly give this remedy my endorsement."

Four of A Kind

Two American Gentlemen Make Love to Two Peasants in Brittany With Serious Results.
By ALLAN WRIGHT.
Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

One summer day two maidens of Brittany dressed in the costumes worn by the peasant classes, walking along a country road, came upon two young art students sketching. One was seated on a stool beside a bridge crossing a brook, at work before his touring easel, while the other was lying on his back on the grass near by smoking a cigarette. The two girls as they crossed the bridge gave a sidelong glance at the canvas on the easel.
The artist was putting on the finishing touches and had succeeded in making a very pretty picture. One of the girls stopped for a moment and exclaimed under her breath, "How beautiful!" and was proceeding on her way when the artist stopped her.
"Will you not tell me," he called,
"what it is in my picture that you like?"
"Certainly, monsieur," she replied in a very sweet voice. "It is the sunlight, sifted through the leaves of the trees, dancing on the water."
These two young men were George Allinson of Chicago and Gilbert Wallace of San Francisco. It was Allinson who addressed the girls. Wallace arose and joined the other three.
"It seems to me," the girl added, still regarding the painting, "that there is something wanting under the cottage on the bank in the background."
Allinson looked up at her surprised.
"You are right," he said. "I have omitted to put in the reflection of the house in the water."
This was the beginning of an acquaintance between the two Americans and the two girls. Their conversations were carried on in French, which the young men spoke tolerably well. Both the girls were comely, and it seemed to the men that there was something about them to render them superior to their class. Having been asked their names, they gave them as Jeanne and Fanchette. Jeanne, the one who criticised Allinson's painting, was a brunette, Fanchette a blond.
Nothing can be more delightful than a flirtation between two girl friends or the one side and two men friends on the other, especially when there is no clashing in preferences. Allinson and Jeanne paired; Wallace and Fanchette did the same. The four met frequently and walked and chatted, most of their intercourse being in company of the whole. The girls, who were cir-cumspect, were not to be found by the young men separated, though when all met they would at times stroll in pairs in different directions.
The time came when the two Americans who had entered upon this association with two peasant girls for a bit of pastime began to find that there was a serious side to it. Their communications grew more and more like lovenaking, and the girls gave a willing ear. In time the expression of pleasure and amusement gave way to a thoughtful cast. Were they falling in love? Were the girls giving away their hearts? The men could not marry French peasant girls. Yet would it be honorable, having won their hearts, to desert them?
Allinson and Wallace consulted with each other over their position, fully realizing its seriousness, but making no effort to break with the girls before matters should be worse. Preparations were made between them to fold their easels and sketching chairs and go to Paris, from whence they came, and thus cut the Gordian knot. But when one was ready to go the other backed out. And so they drifted as in a boat toward a cataract.
They have a curious custom in Brittany. On certain fete days the marriageable girls appear in red petticoats with white or yellow borders round them. The number of borders denote the portion the father is willing to give his daughter. Each white band denotes $20 per annum; each yellow band represents $200 a year.
One day when this double pair were together the girls said that one of these fetes was to come off and it would be pleasant for them all to meet there. Neither of the young men realized how far he had gone in his affair till the girl he was devoted to in a roundabout way hinted that he would learn just what dowry he might expect her to bring him. The young men agreed to meet the girls at the fete; then when the former were alone together they compared notes, each admitting to the other the hint he had received as to the information he could get as to the dowry his girl would bring him.
The matter now looked serious indeed. The two men spent much time—indeed, all their time—endeavoring to find a way out of the escapade, neither of them wishing to find such a way.
They drifted into the hall as they had drifted into the affair itself, though they made a resolution to show the girls that they did not consider the affair of any serious consequence by doing considerable of their dancing with others. But they had been making such resolutions ever since the affair commenced.
"Dear little things!" remarked Allinson to Wallace. "They will suppose as to be especially interested in the stripes on their petticoats."

"And if either of them can show a yellow band she'll regard the matter fixed beyond a doubt. Fancy you, with an income of a thousand, being caught by a dowry of two hundred a year."
"And fancy you, heir to a big property, being caught by a couple of white stripes representing $200 a year each."
"Do you know what I think we deserve?" said Wallace. "We deserve to be roasted over a slow fire."
"You mean you deserve that. You made eyes at Fanchette the moment you saw her."
"You began it yourself by asking her to criticize your picture."
"Let's cut this fete and take the evening train to Paris."
"We'll take the train in the morning."
"Is that a go?"
"Yes. Here's my hand on it."
These words were spoken as they entered the dancing room. There were the two girls waiting for them.
"By Jove!" exclaimed Wallace.
"Your girl has a double yellow stripe —four hundred a year. That with your thousand would enable you to live in this beautiful country and daub at your inclination."
"Yours has but a single white stripe.
But it's just as well since you have a cool twenty thousand a year."
Each man walked up to the girl he was entangled with and asked her to dance. As Allinson approached Jeanne she looked down to adjust the fall of her skirt and gazed proudly upon her two yellow bands. Fanchette, however, looked upon her single white one despondently.
The music was not bad, the girls looked very pretty, and between the dances there was moonlight outside.
Somehow it seemed to each of these two young men that it could not be possible that the girl he was with was a peasant. There was just enough of his own thinking self left to make him understand that he was looking through rose colored glasses. Each man danced inside, then strolled with his girl out into a flower garden. The flowers, lighted by a full moon, did not appear more heavenly than the girl whose warm hand rested on his arm. When the ball was over and the two men friends went away together neither spoke for some time. Then Allinson said:
"I've made an ass of myself."
"Same here."
"I've offered myself."
"Same here."
"I wish we could meet the fool killer on the way home."
"It would be the only way out of it."
"What are we going to do?"
"What we agreed last night—take the train this morning to Paris. There, away from these two girls, we may find some solution of the problem."
The next morning they breakfasted in silence, went to the train in silence and rode to Paris in the same unsociable condition. Each had given his dancer his address and begged her to write him at once and two or three times a day. On the arrival of the first mail that could bring a letter from Brittany each feared he would get a letter, and each was disappointed because he did not get one.
No letter came the next day nor the next nor the next.
"What does it mean?" asked Wallace.
"Don't know," replied Allinson.
"I've a mind to go and find out."
"Like the man who jumped into the bramble bush a second time to scratch his eyes in again."
"You're right there. I won't go."
At the end of a week the two men were in a fever. Though they had probably been let out of the affair comfortably, they would have preferred some other way of being let out.
That's the trouble in such matters—each party prefers to do the breaking off. They were thinking of going back to Brittany to find out what was the matter when they met with a surprise.
They received a card. It read thus:
Miss Grace Nettleton and Miss Leola
Thorne would be pleased to see Mr.
George Allinson and Mr. Gilbert Wallace at a musicale to be given at 12 Rue de S. on the evening of Oct. 2 at 8 p. m.
"Who in thunder are Grace Nettleton and Leola Thorne?" exclaimed Allinson.
Wallace said nothing for awhile.
His eyes were glued to the card.
Presently he broke silence.
"George, it seems to me there's a nigger in the fence."
"What do you mean?"
"I have a theory. It's this: Those two girls we have been courting are either American or English girls studying music in Paris. They went to Brittany for a vacation and for some reason best known to themselves —probably to better mingle with the people—assumed peasants' costumes.
They just simply wiped the floor with us."
"You don't mean it?"
"I do. Look at their names. Netleton and Thorne. I feel a prickly sensation all over."
"Well," exclaimed Allinson, "my girl has made a bargain, and I'm bound to hold her to it."
"So I will with mine if I can."
The two young men, immaculately dressed, went to the musicale, where they were received by the two girls who had shared them. She who had been "Jeanne" wore two yellow silk bands around her skirt, while "Fanchette's" costume was decorated by a single white one. Jeanne turned out to have $200,000 in her own right, and Fanchette was heir to a million.
They were both Americans.
The young men expected to see a pair of dancing eyes in each girl's head, but the triumph was well concealed. Though two pairs of lovers made a long wooing with many setbacks, the affair terminated in a double wedding.

A CHEMIST'S OPINION ON SKIN DISEASES.
H. D. McCulloch Co., chemists and druggists, say that in all their scientific and business experience have they never found any remedy so successful as ZEMO for the treatment of eczema, itching skin diseases, dandruff, blackheads, pimples, and all diseases of the skin and scalp. They say that not only do its curative qualities make it popular but also the fact that it is a clean, liquid remedy for external use. A wonderful improvement over the old greasy ointments and lotions which are not only unpleasant to use but do not destroy the germ life that cause the disease. ZEMO draws the germs to the surface and destroys them, leaving the skin clear and healthy. Can be used freely on infants. The McCulloch Co. will gladly supply those who call, with a free sample bottle of ZEMO and a booklet which explains in simple language all about skin diseases and how to cure yourself at home with ZEMO.

A Home Hint.
Many people having home and loved ones close around them let dullness and congeniality, a little loosening of the tension of duty, a little yielding to a sense of humor, all might be sweet and good.—Woman's Life.

Another Kind of Walk.
Ethel did not rush into his arms and cry "Oh, Cuthbert!" as usual.
When he was ushered into the drawing room she gave him the frigid eye, and the gas was kept on at full pressure.
"I've been studying pedomaney, Cuthbert," she announced.
"Pedomaney, pet?"
"Divination by the feet," she explained. "Feet that incline to flatness are a sign of meanness, Cuthbert."
Cuthbert looked down at his No. 10 tans and sighed.
"A hurried yet silent walk," she continued. "Is indicative of criminal instincts. Your walk is so hurried, so noiseless, Cuthbert."
"You are speaking of only one of my styles of walking, Ethel," he answered brightly. "I have another. I used it this afternoon to walk into a jeweler's shop and buy a $150 engagement ring that I had hoped—"
"Oh, Cuthbert!" she cried, and the next minute the pedomaney expert and a splay footed youth were crowded into one saddlebag chair, and the gas was turned down into a little blue bubble.—San Francisco Chronicle.

Smith of Waupaca were over Sunday visitors. Mrs. F. B. Warren of Iola has been an Amherst visitor the past week. J. H. Thompson, one of Scandinavia's successful farmers was in town Saturday. Allen Berendt of Stevens Point took in the dance given in the opera house Friday. Max Goldusky has accepted a position as fireman on a steam shovel at Fond du Lac. Mrs. Carrie Lucia of Green Bay is visiting her sister, Mrs. Burling of the Central Hotel. The dance given by the S. of V. Friday evening was one of the grand occasions of the season. Mrs. C. H. Goodnow and Miss Frances Edwards of Weyauwega are visiting at Guff Jordan's. Will Loftis and Mike Lynch, so it is said, have bought out Angus Maxwell's business in Waupaca. Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Riley of Stevens Point are spending the week on their farm in the town of Lanark. Fred Peterson, Will Milbreit, F. Ristow, C. Miller and Vic Sandholm left for Devils Lake, N. D., last week. William Williams, one of the pioneers of this town, died at his home two miles east of this village last Thursday. Ruben Thompson, one of the early settlers in this town, passed away at the home of Otto Lennor, last Saturday. Mr. and Mrs. Meddlested, John Milbreit and Miss Wagner of Waupaca were guests at August Milbreit's last Monday. Maurice Wilson went through here Monday on his way from Ashland where he had been on a three days' business trip for the VanBrunt Co. of Horicon. Mr. and Mrs. Goodman Amundson, Mr. and Mrs. Soren Halverson and Oscar Torbenson of Iola attended the funeral of Mrs. Foxen Friday afternoon.

The young ladies of the Norwegian Lutheran church gave a "tin shower" to Bernice Anderson at the home of Rev. and Mrs. G. A. Sundby Friday evening. Henry Hardgrove, who had been visiting at the home of Albert Soper, returned to his home in Manitowoc where he is superintendent of the canning factory. DANCY.

School resumed again Monday after Easter vacation. E. E. Topham transacted business at Wausau last week Wednesday. Mrs. Daniel Corlett spent a few days recently among friends at Rhinelander. Jos. Marchel, depot agent at Rudolph, spent Sunday at his home near this village. Miss Martha Kling of Stevens Point spent a couple of days recently at her home in Dancy. Mrs. Mary Wheaton, who has been at Rhinelander for some time, is visiting Dancy friends. E. E. Marchel, who has been laid up with rheumatism the past month, is again able to be around. R. K. Mann, with the Forster Lumber Co. of Milwaukee, transacted business in this village recently. Senator Theo. W. Brazeau of Grand Rapids was in this village a day the past week on business matters. The many friends of Mrs. S. G. Stoddard throughout this locality were very sorry to hear of her death, which occurred at her home in Stevens Point Monday. The dancing party which was given in Topham's hall last Thursday evening was a very pleasant social event. A large gathering was present to enjoy the splendid music that was furnished by Weber's orchestra of Stevens Point. Several dozen fishermen and fisherwomen also, mostly from Junction City, have been at Eau Claire, near this village, the past couple of weeks, trying their luck at angling. Some kinds of fish are reported plentiful while other kinds are scarce. Jacob A. Harmon of Peoria was in Dancy a couple of days the past week in interests of the Dancy drainage district, he having the contract for the civil engineering work in the district.

Dredge boat No. 2 is now working in G. G. Knoller's field, only a few rods from this station, and will complete the work on that ditch the latter part of this week. This boat will then be shipped to Iowa, where Chas. Forrester, the dredging contractor, has another big job. For the past two Sundays in the Chicago Record-Herald appeared very large and well gotten up real estate advertisements setting forth the many inducements our very esteemed neighbor, C. E. Guenther of Knowlton, has to offer in the real estate line. Mr. Guenther is one of the most extensive land owners in this section of country and in connection with his home office also has a Chicago office. He is a hustler from the ground up. That his efforts will be rewarded there is no doubt.

MEEHAN.

Fox went to Amherst Junction Monday, where she will remain a week with her daughter, Mrs. V. W. Ward. Our farmers are busy sowing oats and other spring grain. Cole, who recently moved from Alberta, Canada, to Grand Rapids, was here last week looking after his large farm known as the Fenton place. Mrs. Nellie Pike has been very sick with the grippe and threatened with pneumonia. She is recovering under the care of Dr. Walters of Stevens Point. Land lies level and fine; small stream runs through the place, having running water the year around; practically every foot of the place is under cultivation; interurban extension is surveyed right by the place, which when built will advance the price at least $10 per acre, and every indication is that the road will be built this coming summer. This place is easily worth the price asked, $65 per acre. No. 124—960 acres, something like 150 acres under cultivation and more can be put under; the remainder of the place is good pasture, making it a fine stock and grain ranch, with plenty of hay for a small hunch of stock, say 150 head; 13 miles from railroad, but has telephone to the house, daily mail in the neighborhood, poor buildings, but can get along with them; two streams of water through the place, some brush for stock shelter. This place is bound to advance in value. Price $13,000 for the place.

Hoffman and son Harold of Stevens Point are enjoying a few of these fine spring days with Knowlton relatives. This election day, April 5th, in our village chronicles the first rain of the season and fills the town hall with many voters interested in who may become elected—also keeping out of the rain. The funeral of the late Mrs. McHugh was largely attended Saturday morning at St. Francis church, with interment in Knowlton cemetery. Many floral offerings decked the casket. The pallbearers were six sons of the deceased.

The music under the personal direction of Mrs. G. G. Knoller, filled the church with sympathetic cadence. A tribute to Mrs. Margaret Sinnott McHugh: Again has another kind, noble and unselfish woman gone to her reward, the destiny that awaits one and all. A void has been made in one more household; one more family circle is broken; one more home made desolate by the loss of a mother. A large community of friends and neighbors will remember Mrs. McHugh, who lent her presence unto each and everyone in a quiet, happy way, being regarded as a friend at all times and in all places. Tho her years had covered the time allotted on this earth, still to part with her was sad indeed. Her domestic happiness proved a source of pleasure with her home circle, which by them will now be missed under every circumstance, so closely was she allied to home interests in its entirety. The love and beauty of a mother's heart is still, No more the bright, joyful, happy look will thrill, The sons and daughters that are left to mourn alone, For her who now has reached a higher, greater throne. ## SYNOPSIS.

The story opens with the introduction of John Stephens, an adventurer, a Massachusetts man marooned by authorities at Valparaiso, Chile, being interested in operations in Bolivia. He was denounced by Chile as an insurrectionist and as a consequence was hiding. At his hotel his attention was attracted by an Englishman and a young woman. Stephens rescued the young woman from a drunken officer. He was thanked by a Lord Darlington, the Poruvian navy commander. Stephens, told him that he had been declared between Chile and Peru and offered him the office of captain. He desired that that night the Esmeralda, a Chilean vessel, should be captured. Stephens accepted the commission. Stephens met a motley crew, to which he was assigned. He gave them final instructions. They boarded the vessel. They successfully captured the vessel supposed to be the Esmeralda, through strategy. Capt. Stephens gave directions for the departure of the craft. He entered the cabin and discovered the English woman and her maid. Stephens quickly learned the wrong vessel had been captured. It was Lord Darlington's private yacht. The lord's wife and maid being aboard. He explained the situation to her ladyship. Then First Mate Tuttle laid bare the plot, saying that the Sea Queen had been taken in order to go to the Antarctic circle. Tuttle explained that on a former voyage he had learned that the Donna Isabel was lost in 1753. He had found it frozen in a huge mass of ice on an island and contained much gold. Stephens consented to be the captain of the expedition. He told Lady Darlington she was greatly alarmed, but expressed confidence in him. The Sea Queen encountered a vessel in the fog. Stephens attempted to communicate.

"Lay your hands on me again," I threatened, sternly, "and I'll floor you to the deck. I'll take that grin off your face, De Nova. If you attempt any interference with me now."

He understood quickly enough what I meant, and evidently had no relish for attacking me alone, for with one swift, searching glance into the fog, he leaped down the steps and ran hastily aft. I knew he was seeking the backing of Tuttle, and armed myself with a belying pin, peering eagerly meanwhile for the nearby sail, and cursing the fellow at the wheel for not holding her up to the point directed. They came up together, two steps at a time. Tuttle in his shirt sleeves, and, as they attained the bridge, Bill Anderson swung himself out of the hatch and started after them. I backed away, the ugly iron pin grasped in my hand.

"You'd better keep back," I warned, threateningly. "I'm ready to brain the first man who attempts to touch me."

Tuttle stopped, his jaw working savagely, his eyes on mine.

"Will you promise to keep quiet, sir, and let us get away out of this?"

"Damn you, no!" stubbornly, all my senses leaving me at sight of his hateful face. "I'll speak that ship yonder if I have to fight the crew of you single-handed."

"Then fight, you cockerel, an' be damned to you!" roared Anderson; and he pressed past the two of them and sprang at me.

It was hot, swift work, while it lasted. I struck twice, laying open the big brute's scalp, and dropping him so his head hung dangling down over the deck, his body huddled against the rail. I aimed to do as well by Tuttle, but the descending pin landed on his uplifted arm, and, before I could draw back for another blow, the fellow at the wheel released the spokes and jumped at my back, throttling me with his hands as the weight of his body crushed me to the planks. Grasping the rail I half tore myself loose, rising to one knee, and struck him twice madly in the face; but others of the crew came tumbling on top of us, pinning me helplessly down. It was all the work of a breathless moment, and as I lay there, the knee of a negro crunching into my chest, I saw De Nova spring to the wheel and whirl it hard down, while Tuttle, his left arm dangling, his teeth set from pain, began jangling the bells in the engine-room. Scarcely had the echo reached us when a strange voice hailed sharply from out the dense fog:

"Steamer, ahoy! What vessel is that?"

Tuttle's nasal voice answered: "Steam yacht Cormorant, Panama to Easter Island, for pleasure. Who are you?"

"H. M. S. Victory, on cruise. Stand by, while we send a boat."

A deep oath sprang to Tuttle's lips, his fingers convulsively gripping the rail. Then he appeared to rally, the very intensity of his fear making a new man out of him.

"Lively, lads, clear the deck," he commanded, harshly. "Here, one of you take the wheel. Now, De Nova, bundle that fighting fool down into the charthouse, and stand over him with a gun. Two of you fellows carry the boatswain into the fo'castle; lively, now."

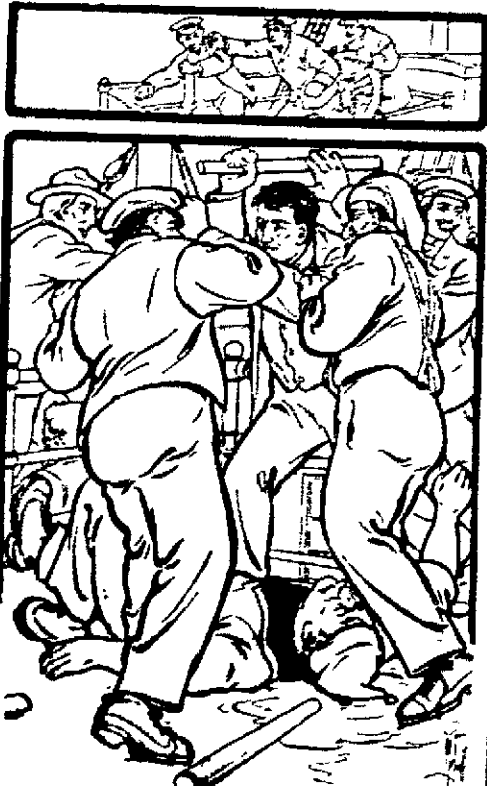

They were certainly expeditious enough in my case, dragging me bumping down the steps, and flinging me in between table and bench with a violence that made me groan. I caught the glimmer of a steel barrel in De Nova's hand as he drew close the sliding door.

"It was not nice sing to do, Mons. Stephens," he said, not ill-naturedly, "but, by gar, out ze farsity row it was going to be done, for I shoot ze pistol very good."

"That's all right, De Nova," I replied, realizing my complete defeat and holding no personal grudge against him. "I don't blame you. I've made my play, and have had enough. May I sit up?"

He nodded carelessly, dropping the revolver back into his jacket pocket, yet with his black eyes fastened shrewdly on my face.

"'Tis ze bes' way to talk, monsieur," pausing to listen to the mingled sounds without. "Secre, I wonder w'at ze devil was up now!"

The Descending Pin Landed on His Uplifted Arm.

We both sat, breathing hard from our late exertions, listening anxiously, yet with vastly differing emotions, hope animating me that this was to prove a capture, or, at least, that some chance discovery by the officer visiting us would result in the release of the women below. But De Nova was in an agony of apprehension, the full peril of his position clear before him. We heard the bare feet of the hurrying sailors patter along the deck, the strident voice of Tuttle issuing a few final commands, and the faint sound of oars in the water alongside. The officer came slowly up the ladder, and my heart sank as I heard him laugh carelessly to the mate's greeting. I could distinguish the sound of his voice, but not the words uttered, and in some way it impressed me with the thought that the fellow was young, a midshipman, possibly, who would prove more putty under Tuttle's expert handling. The two went down the companion-steps together in apparently amiable conversation, and we could hear the low murmur of voices as the crew hung over the rail festing with the men-o-war's men in the boat below. My eyes met De Nova's in the semi-darkness, and he grinned, showing his teeth.

"Nessing ver' dangerous, monsieur," he said, easily. "Ze oil fox he fool zat kid."

I attempted no response, my mind already sufficiently heavy from apprehension. Oh, for just a word, merely an opportunity to cry out our story before it was forever too late! De Nova must have felt the struggle within me, for he stretched his legs across the narrow passage leading to the door, and I saw his hand thrust into his coat pocket. Underneath his genial veneer he was one to act upon occasion, absolutely careless of the result. So I waited in silence, my teeth set hard, my hands clenched, as the last vestige of hope oozed slowly out of me. They were scarcely ten minutes below, coming up chatting in rare good fellowship, the officer clinging to the rail, his feet on the ladder, while he completed some story he had been relating with much gusto. Then we heard plainly the dip of oars, growing gradually fainter in the distance, feet pattered on the deck planks, Tuttle's voice sounded from the bridge, and the vessel began throbbing to the steady chug of the screws. We were safely under way again, pressing our sharp bow into the fog-bank. Unable to control my weakness, I buried my face in my hands.

I do not know how long we sat there motionless, De Nova staring blankly at the vapor sweeping past the window, and I with head lowered in depression. It was Tuttle himself, with one arm in an improvised sling, who slid open the door of the charthouse and looked in upon us.

"This is your watch yet, De Nova," he said, shortly, "and I need to doctor up my arm a bit. You're a dam' hard bitter, Mr. Stephens," no trace of anger in his voice, "but that's about the last chance you'll have to kick up a shindy on this vessel. You'll go below, sir, an' stay there, unless we happen to need you."

I stepped forth onto the open deck in obedience to his gesture.

"Then I am no longer even in pretended command, but merely your prisoner."

"Call it whatever suits you best," he returned, grimly. "The result will be the same in any case. Well, De Nova, what are you waitin' for?"

"I sink maybe you say w'at was it ze navy man wanted?"

Tuttle's solemn countenance broke into the semblance of a grin.

"Plug tobacco," he announced, sucking his lips with sudden enjoyment of the joke. "Gave me the scare of my life, but that's all it amounted to. Been out cruisin' for three months, an' the crew ready to mutiny for smokin' and chewin'. Nice, sociable little chap they sent over, too."

CHAPTER XIII.

In Which We Sail Due South.

As I sank down into the recesses of a cushioned chair in the cabin, my spirits at lowest ebb, I glanced up at the telltale compass—we were already headed due south.

Those days and nights following, while serving to bear us continually deeper into the immense expanse of water that concealed the mystery awaiting us in the great South sea, contained little of incident directly relating to this narrative. Day following day that same wide circle of the sky came down to unite with the circle of the waters. It was almost as though we remained motionless, "a painted ship upon a painted ocean"; only the figures on the paper, the pins on the chart, the sharp stem cleaving the waves asunder, and the oily wake astern leaving us aware of steady progression through this trackless desert of the sea.

We passed somewhat to the westward of Juan Fernandez, so far out that only with a glass from the foretop could the distant peaks be dimly deciphered in blue, misty blots against the sky. Already Tuttle had banked the fires, and spread the Sea Queen's canvas, reaching to the westward to get the most possible out of the fresh breeze. The Sea Queen changed motive power and appearance as if by magic, the square yards hiding the jauntness of her keel, and concealing the rake of her masts, the white sails billowing out before the wind, sending her swooping forward through the water like a great bird, leaning over until at times her lee rail was all awash with white foam and her forward decks glistening with spume.

Tuttle drove her recklessly, holding on in spite of crackling wood and sails threatening to tear loose from the bolt-eyes, taking shrewd advantage of each slant of wind, and lowering canvas only when danger was deadly. He had come into his own, he was at home, and the rejuvenated Sea Queen leaped forward at his will, as though to understand her moods, her caprices as though he had sailed her in every sea, and I watched him test her, loosening a rope here, tightening another there, striving to discover her good and bad qualities, until my admiration for his seamanship almost overbalanced my growing detestation of him otherwise.

Lady Darlington became positively afraid of him, dreading his approach, shrinking from his address, yet not daring to withdraw wholly from his presence. His sole topic of conversation was psychomancy, and every time she endeavored to lead him to some more pleasant subject he would return with dogmatic persistence to that one rather dismal theme. His blatant self-conceit saved him from realizing her utter weariness, and he never seemed to tire of his own unctuous, nasal tones. Heavens, but the fellow was an insufferable bore. Celeste would slip away unobserved, but her mistress and myself had no means of escape. I remained quietly below for three days, and even then was not released by any formal word of mouth. I simply became so tired of the senseless imprisonment that I mounted to the deck, taking Lady Darlington with me, determined to be confined to the cabin no longer except by physical force. De Nova was upon the bridge when we emerged from the companion, but he merely glanced at us curiously. Tuttle, coming aft a little later, retained silence enough to remain silent. The three days passed below had thrown me much into the society of both mistress and maid, although the frank intimacy of that first conversation with Lady Darlington was never renewed. There seemed an intangible barrier of reserve between us, although we talked freely enough regarding our situation, the peculiarities of Tuttle, and the constantly changing wonders of the deep. It was as if neither of us quite dared to probe beneath the surface, opening up once more the depths each endeavored to conceal; rather were we content to drift as the tide ran.

I saw comparatively little of De Nova, the second officer, during this period, and gained an impression that he was endeavoring to avoid meeting me. Yet I ran across him twice in company with Celeste, once in the cabin, and again in the narrow deck space overhanging the stern, and began to hope vaguely that the girl was wanting him over to our interests. With the others I sought to approach I made no progress. McKnight seldom showed his nose above deck, and then only to smoke in sullen silence, seated gloomily on the edge of the main hatch or to the lee of the charthouse. Olsen was undoubtedly honest enough, yet without intelligence, his eyes those of a faithful dog. The Chilean, a smooth-faced young fellow wonderfully deficient in chin, I learned had been assigned as assistant to the cook, and was thus kept too busy inside the galley even to be approached. Indeed, so far I had not seen his face on board the ship.

CHAPTER XIV.

In Which De Nova Speaks.

What now occurred came upon us with such suddenness that I find it difficult to relate the incidents in detail. We must have been below the fiftieth degree of south latitude, and about 135 degrees west, with the wind strong and occasionally puffing up into squalls, bearing flakes of snow which stung exposed flesh and left a thin mantle of white along the decks. It was Tuttle's watch below, and as I paused in the protection of the companionway looking forward, while I got my pipe going, I could see De Nova on the bridge, wrapped up like a mummy, and crouching well down behind the tarpaulins. All about was a wild sea scene, never to be looked upon amid any other stretch of waters on the globe—a dull, dead picture of utter desolation, of madly racing waves, of green, sullen sea, of pale blue sky, the very frost in the air apparent; a cold, drear expanse of monotonous distance wherever the eye looked—a desert of water below, a void of air above. Big Bill Anderson, his head still bunched up where I had cracked him, slouched in the doorway of the charthouse, staring aft, and a moment later De Nova came lumbering down the steps from the bridge and spoke with him for some earnestly. The boatswain finally went forward, clinging to a lifeline to keep footing on the slippery deck, and the second officer claved along the weather-rail until he reached the companion.

Almost Deserved to Escape

Truant's Quick Grasp of Opportunity Compels Admiration

The absent-minded professor returned home one night to learn that his son had played truant from school, and he was asked by his wife to hunt up the missing youngster and administer a sound thrashing.

"Why, I'll flay him alive!" exclaimed the angry father. "I'll break every bone in his body! Just wait until I get him out in the woodshed!"

He came across his heir playing marbles about a mile from home, but the boy didn't seem to be a bit alarmed by the old man's threats. As they started to return home the absent-minded professor stopped to chat with an old acquaintance, and it was fifteen or twenty minutes later when he looked down in wonder at the boy at his side and asked:

"Why, where did you come from, Jack?"

"Don't you remember, father?" smiled the boy, "we are on our way to buy me a box of candy, because of my excellent school report."

"Bless me, but so we are," agreed the absent-minded professor, as he patted the boy on the back and started for the store.

Concrete Also Is New-Old. Concrete itself is, of course, very old. The concrete stairs of Colchester and Rochester castles still show the marks of the encasing boards; the dome of Agrippa's Pantheon, which is 142 feet in diameter, is of concrete; and fragments of concrete buildings are found in Mexico and Peru.

WON'T VISIT POPE

COL. ROOSEVELT DECLINES INVITATION TO CALL UPON HIS HOLINESS.

AFFAIR CREATES SENSATION

Question of Calling at American Methodist Mission First Stops Former President from Paying His Respects to Catholic Prelate.

Rome.—Through exactly the same causes which forced Pope Pius X not to receive former Vice-President Fairbanks—the question of preference over the American Methodist mission—Theodore Roosevelt has declined an invitation to visit the vatican.

Negotiations had been opened through Ambassador Leishman here for the contemplated visit of Col. Roosevelt. The latter explained himself as anxious to see the pope. The latter in reply said he hoped that no such unpleasant incident as that which marred the visit of Mr. Fairbanks to this city would occur. Mr. Fairbanks declined to visit the vatican before seeing the Methodists. Col. Roosevelt replied that he could not visit the vatican under such conditions, and when he got a reply saying that it would be impossible to lift the restrictions Roosevelt cabled saying that the visit was impossible.

The affair has created a tremendous sensation here.

It is learned that Col. Roosevelt had made no arrangement whatever to visit the Methodists here. The only audience which he had arranged was with the king. The distinguished American felt that as an American citizen, it was to say the least unfair for anyone to attempt in any way to hamper his movements and he felt that was the effect of the conditions imposed by the vatican.

It is learned that Col. Roosevelt has given out a statement in America defending his course and at the same time expressing his regrets that such an incident should have occurred.

BALLINGER TO STRIKE BACK

Secretary of Interior Threatens Prosecution of Publishers for Attacks in Magazine.

Washington.—One of the most startling declarations brought out by the congressional committee's investigation of the Pinchot-Ballinger controversy was made when H. K. Love, formerly a special agent of the land office, while under cross-examination by Attorney Brandeis, asserted that John W. Dudley, former register of the land office at Juneau, Alaska, had told him in Juneau last February that an agent of Collier's Weekly had intimated to him that "it would be worth from $5,000 to $10,000 to him" to come to Washington to testify.

Secretary Ballinger declared his intention of seeking legal redress against Collier's for the articles that are being published attacking him.

"If they think they can attack me with impunity they are mistaken," said Mr. Ballinger. He announced emphatically that he proposed to "bring them to justice in due time."

While Mr. Ballinger would not indicate when or in what form proceedings in law would be instituted against the periodical, he said that if he lived long enough it would "suffer all the penalties the law will warrant."

The statement that he intended seeking redress through the medium of the courts was made in discussing the article in the current issue of Collier's headed "Ballinger—Shyster," in which the secretary of the interior is accused of an "unpardonable breach of professional honor" in connection with a bankruptcy proceeding in the United States district court in Seattle.

"For the malicious, villainous and untruthful attacks of which this is another chapter," Mr. Ballinger declared, "I propose to bring them to justice."

RAID BIG BROKER OFFICES.

Government Fires First Gun in Battle to Wipe Out Buckshops—Twenty-Nine Persons Indicted.

Washington.—Special agents of the department of justice Saturday simultaneously raided brokers' offices in New York, Philadelphia, Jersey City, Baltimore and St. Louis. The action was the first move in a federal crusade against buckshops and the raiders were armed with bench warrants issued by the Supreme court of the District of Columbia.

Conspiracy indictments, in which 29 persons are named—five of them said to be millionaires and all interested in brokers' offices in large cities of the United States—were returned by the federal grand jury of the District of Columbia upon evidence which agents of the department of justice had been gathering for more than a year.

GENERAL NEWS.

Robert W. Patterson, editor-in-chief of the Chicago Tribune, died suddenly in Philadelphia. Half an hour before his death occurred, his mother, Mrs. Julia A. Patterson, widow of one of the most prominent Presbyterian clergymen of Illinois, passed away at the home of her son-in-law in Chicago.

The portion of the speech delivered dealt almost exclusively with the proposed court of commerce, which Senator Root defended notwithstanding, he said, it appealed to him far less strongly than did most of the other features of the bill.

Convinced that the murder of Alexander J. Italy is in terror and residents have fled to the hills for safety from Mount Etna. A heavy fall of ashes covered the streets to a depth of six inches. Thirty craters are belching fire and lava, and red-hot stones bombard the country about the slopes of the volcano. Hundreds of tourists, the majority of them Americans, who came here to view the spectacle, made haste to depart.

Requisition papers for the extradition of J. Ogden Armour of Chicago were filed with Gov. Fort at Trenton, N. J., by Prosecutor Garven of Hudson county.

That the corporation tax law will be amended to restrict the operation of its publicity feature was virtually assured when the house slightly amended a provision previously adopted by the senate for that purpose. As passed by the house the law bearing on this subject provides that "all corporation tax returns shall be open to inspection only upon the order of the president, under rules and regulations to be prescribed by the secretary of the treasury and approved by the president."

Unofficial returns from the Democratic primary held in Arkansas indicate the renomination, equivalent to election, of Gov. George W. Donaghey over Judge C. C. Kavanaugh.

Because R. L. Mott, president of the village council at Elmhurst, Ill., persists in pushing an ancient side-barrow along the new grand old sidewalks, after vetoing an ordinance forbidding the practice, the council has called a special meeting to pass the ordinance over his veto.

Stops Lameness

Much of the chronic lameness in horses is due to neglect. See that your horse is not allowed to go lame. Keep Sloan's Liniment on hand and apply at the first sign of stiffness. It's wonderfully penetrating—goes right to the spot—relieves the soreness—limbers up the joints and makes the muscles elastic and pliant.

Here's the Proof.

Mr. G. T. Roberts of Resaca, Ga., R.F.D. No. 3, writes:—"I have used your Liniment on a horse for sweeney and effected a thorough cure. I also removed a splain on a mule. This splain was as large as a guinea egg. In my estimation the best remedy for lameness and soreness is

Sloan's Liniment

Mr. H. M. Gibbs, of Lawrence, Kans., R.F.D. No. 3, writes:—"Your Liniment is the best that I have ever used. I had a mare with an abscess on her neck and one eye. Sloan's Liniment entirely cured her. I keep it around all the time for galls and small swellings and for everything about the stock."

Sloan's Liniment will kill a spavin, curb or splint, reduce wind puffs and swollen joints, and is a sure and speedy remedy for fistula, sweeney, founder and thrush.

SILK AND FLANNEL

DIFFERENT METHODS NECESSARY IN THE LAUNDRY.

Temperature of Water is the One Thing Necessary to Remember When Cleaning Flannels—Proper Process with Silks.

Silks are even more difficult to wash than flannels. In cleaning flannels all that is necessary to remember is that if one starts the laundry work with hot water the rinsing and bluing waters must be of the same temperature, or all three waters may be cold, for the shrinking of the material is caused by changing the garments from one temperature to another. The so-called fine silk flannels should be washed by the same method as is here given for silks.

With silks the process differs from that used for flannels that neither hot nor cold water should be used and that the washing, rinsing and bluing waters should all be tepid. Make a lather with some good soap, do not rub soap on the silk unless to remove perspiration stains. Rub between the hands, not on a board, rinse, blue, and squeeze out as much water as possible, but do not wring. The advantage of this will be found when doing the ironing as fewer wrinkles will have to be removed. Shake the garments into shape and hang where they will get air and dry evenly, but not in the sun, as sun burns silks as well as complexion.

When they are almost dry iron with a moderately hot iron, just hot enough to remove the wrinkles, and do not let it remain in one place longer than absolutely necessary, as it is the heat that discolors silks.

Soft silks, wash, china, and especially pongee must be ironed when damp all over or when perfectly dry. They, particularly the pongee, cannot be sprinkled as after ironing the sprinkling will show in unsightly spots and the garment must be again wet all over to remove them. The best results may be obtained by ironing silk when it is damp as so hot an iron is not required to remove wrinkles as when the material is perfectly dry.

White and pink silks will turn yellow if washed in hot water and a deep yellow if boiled and especially will this be noted in the wash ribbons that are used so much in lingerie, while pale blue will fade to a clear white and remain so as long as they are in use.

The easiest way to keep lingerie ribbons in order is to wash a number of them at a time in tepid water and wind around a large bottle and leave them there until dry. This has the same effect as ironing without the drawback of the heat. Fine laces may also be dried to great advantage by this method.

White silk stockings, lingerie, underwear, waists, and dresses that have become spoiled by careless washing and are too yellow to be attractive may be dipped in instantaneous dyes with most excellent results and be as pretty as new. Silk that has become yellow will take a fine shade of tan and that which is only a deep cream can be colored a dainty pink or baby blue, while any dark shade is still easier to handle.

In using instantaneous dyes be careful to try a sample of the material first to be sure that the desired shade has been obtained and in dyeing to have all parts of the articles thoroughly soaked, special attention being given to shirtings, plaits, belts, and all parts where the goods is in folds. When the process of dyeing is completed the coloring matter will be in the materials and the water will be almost clear.

The only way to launder white silks and to keep them white is to do it one's self, avoid heat and complete the process as rapidly as possible.

Portola Cake.

Cream one cup of brown or granulated sugar with half a cup of lard and one teaspoonful of salt, one egg beaten well, one teaspoonful of cinnamon, half a teaspoonful of cloves, half a teaspoonful of nutmeg, one cup of sour milk mixed with one level teaspoonful of baking soda or one cup of sweet milk and two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one cup of seedless raisins and two cups of sifted flour; mix thoroughly and bake in a moderate oven.

Gingerbread—Chocolate.

Less familiar to the average cake-baker is a delicious German combination of gingerbread and chocolate. This is old-fashioned gingerbread made in layers with a soft chocolate fudge filling between, and a thick, smooth chocolate icing on top. The combination of chocolate and ginger will be found most happy by those who have yet to become acquainted with it.

An Ironing Board Hint.

If you do not want your ironing board to fall down when the door behind which it reposes is suddenly opened, try keeping it in place with a noose. Fasten a screw hook to the woodwork at back of door, and to it tie a double cord long enough to slip around ironing board and fasten the other end to the hook.

White Soup.

Three medium-sized potatoes, one small onion. Peel, slice, and cover well with water. When done put water and all through colander. Add one pint of milk. Season with pepper, salt, and lump of butter.

REAL WISE BOY WAS WILLIE

May Not Have Known Proper Answer to Question, But He Knew the Fair Sex.

"Flattery," said William Faversham, at a rehearsal in New York, "has great weight with women."

"This fact was brought home to me in my boyhood. Before entering Chigwell grammar school I attended a kind of kindergarten. My teacher was a very pretty young lady."

"Willie," my teacher said to me one morning, "why was Solomon the wisest man in the world?"

"Because, ma'am," said I, "he had so many wives to advise him."

"Well," said my teacher, with a pleasant smile, "that is not the precise answer given in the book, but you may go up head."

IN HOSPITAL FOR NINE MONTHS.

Awful Tale of Suffering From Kidney Trouble.

Alfred J. O'Brien, Second St., Sterling, Colo., says: "I was in the Baltimore Marine Hospital for nine months. I had a dull pain in the small of my back that completely wore me out. The urine was in a terrible state, and some days I would pass half a gallon of blood. I left the hospital because they wanted to operate on me. I went to St. Joseph's Hospital at Omaha and put in three months there without any gain. I was pretty well discouraged when I was advised to use Doan's Kidney Pills. I did so and by the time I had taken one box, the pain in the back left me. I kept right on and a perfect cure was the result."

Remember the name—Doan's.

For sale by all dealers. 50 cents a box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

Murphy.

The prisoner at the bar was of swarthy complexion and was charged with peddling without a license. "What is your name?" asked the magistrate.

"He says his name is Murphy," repeated the policeman on the bridge.

"An Irishman peddling bananas, eh? What part of Ireland do you come from?"

"He says he was born in Italy," again responded the bridge policeman.

"Umph! The Murphys are numerous, but I didn't think they had spread to Italy," said the judge as he made the fine $1 and asked the man to spell his name.

The prisoner wrote on a piece of paper "Giuseppe Muerfee."—New York Sun.

Silence.

Very few men know how to keep still. The Italians have a proverb, "Hear, see and say nothing. If you wish to live in peace." The man who is bent on telling all he knows, generally ends in telling a good deal more than he knows. The tongue is harder to bridle than the wildest horse that ever roamed the prairie. The Germans say truly that talking comes by nature, while silence comes by the understanding.

Wrong View of Marriage.

"There would be less divorce," said ex-Gov. Pennypacker, "if there were fewer men like William Windle."

"William Windle embarked on an excursion steamer for Point Breeze, and a few miles out, as he paced the upper deck and drank in the bracing ozone, he spied his friend Jackson.

"Why, Jackson, how are ye?" he exclaimed. "Are ye out for pleasure, or is yer wife along?"

Farmers should eat more oatmeal. Although the farmer of today is able to buy almost anything he wants to wear or eat he isn't paying enough attention to food values when it comes to his own table.

He feeds his stock carefully, avoids over-feeding and selects the stock food that he believes will give the best returns in strength and general efficiency.

If he has been watching the extensive researches and experiments on the question of the best human food for muscle and brain he will heed the advice from all sides to "eat more Quaker Oats."

Quaker Oats is mentioned because it is recognized in this country and Europe as the best of all oatmeals. Feeding farm hands on Quaker Oats means getting more work out of them than if you feed them on anything else.

In New Hampshire.

That irresponsible Manchester Union man gave himself a surprise party by going to church last Sunday and this was the result: "On this first Sunday of Lent, while George Bailey of the Houston Post is sacrilegiously fishing for eels in a Texas bayou, and the (married) paragrapher of the Kennebeck Journal is tapping his boots, and the Ging-Ging Gophus of the Springfield Union is playing seven-up, we, in common with other good New Hampshire people, shall dutifully attend church.—Springfield Union.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by Catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circular, free.

GLADNESS COMES

With a better understanding of the transient nature of the many physical ills which vanish before proper efforts—gentle efforts—pleasant efforts—rightly directed. There is comfort in the knowledge that so many forms of illness are not due to any actual disease, but simply to a constipated condition of the system, which the pleasant family laxative, Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna, promptly removes. That is why it is the only remedy with millions of families, and is everywhere esteemed so highly by all who value good health. Its beneficial effects are due to the fact that it is the only remedy which promotes internal cleanliness, without debilitating the organs on which it acts. It is, therefore, all-important, in order to get its beneficial effects, to purchase and note that you have the genuine article, which is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only.

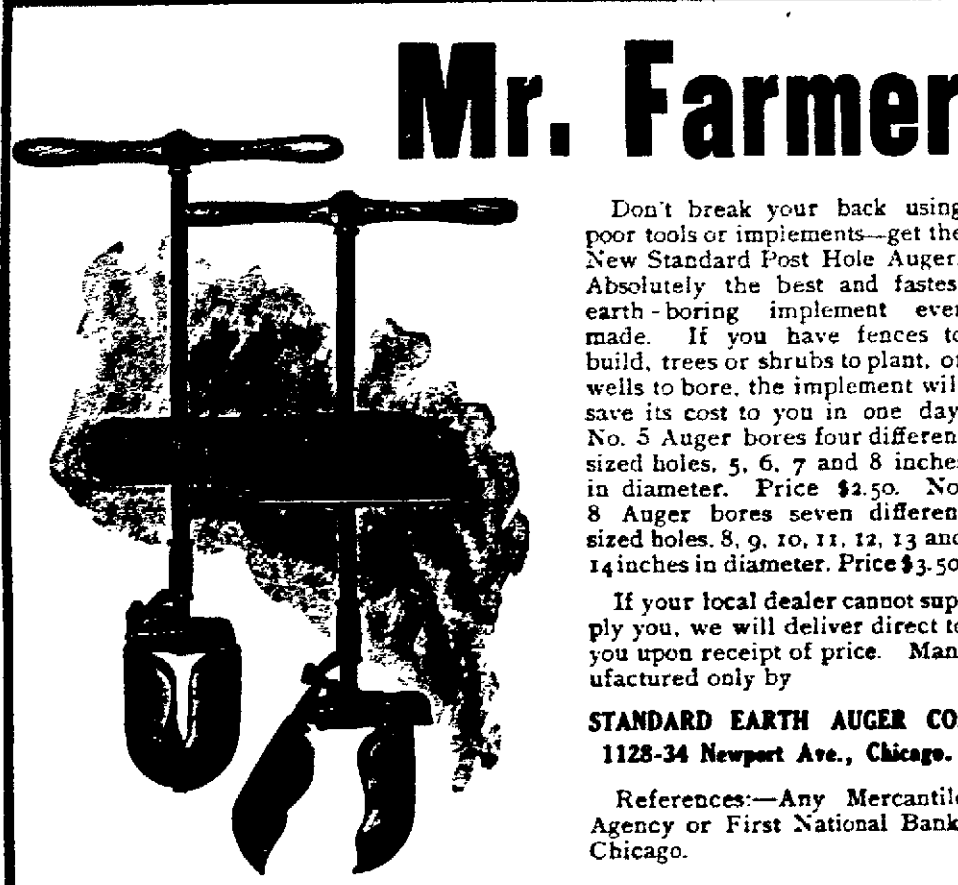

It is pleasant and refreshing to the taste, and acts gently yet promptly on the kidneys, liver and bowels, cleanses the system effectually, dispels colds, headaches and fevers and assists in overcoming habitual constipation permanently, also biliousness and the many ills resulting therefrom. The great trouble with all other purgatives and aperients is not that they fail to act when a single dose is taken, but that they act too violently and invariably tend to produce a habit of body requiring constantly augmented doses. Children enjoy the pleasant taste and gentle action of Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna, the ladies find it delightful and beneficial whenever a laxative remedy is needed, and business men pronounce it invaluable, as it may be taken without interfering with business and does not gripe nor nauseate. When buying note the name, California Fig Syrup Co. printed on the front of every package. Price, 50 cents a bottle.
